Barney Cotton

Nebraska '83

Offensive Coordinator
Offensive Line Coach
Third Season

Iowa State head coach Dan McCarney sold Barney Cotton on becoming his offensive coordinator and offensive line coach in January of 2004. The steady improvement of a young Cyclone offensive unit that averaged 29 points per conference game last season has sold Iowa State on Barney Cotton. The Cyclones' 339 points last season rank third in school history. For the first time in the 114-year history of Iowa State football, the Cyclones scored 37 or more points against three straight conference foes. The most impressive feature of Cotton's 2005 unit was what it accomplished with only one senior starter.

Two of Iowa State's marquee players have enjoyed strong sophomore seasons after earning freshman All-America honors in Cotton's first year at ISU. Iowa State quarterback Bret Meyer threw for 2,876 yards last season. Only Seneca Wallace (3,245) of the Seattle Seahawks ever threw for more yards in a single season at Iowa State. Having racked up his impressive career numbers in just 24 games, Meyer is the third-highest rated quarterback in ISU history. His 4,802 two-year passing yardage total ranks fourth on the all-time school list. Meyer tallied 2,999 yards of total offense last season, ranking only behind Wallace's 3,682 total yards in 14 2002 games.

Wide receiver Todd Blythe has already caught a school-record 18 career TD passes. The two-time first-team all-Big 12 choice already ranks fourth all-time with 1,833 career reception yards. His 19.6 yards per catch last season ranked second nationally. His 1,000 receiving yards last season ranks third on the all-time ISU single-season list as he joined Lane Danielsen (2002) and Tracy Henderson (1983) as the only Cyclones to reach 1,000 receiving yards in a single season.

Cotton's offensive linemen have made major contributions to Iowa State's 2005 scoring success. Center Scott Stephenson, playing his first season under Cotton, was named first-team all-Big 12 and is a member of the 2006 Rimington Trophy watch list. Aaron Brant is a pre-season first-team all-Big 12 offensive tackle. In 2004, left tackle Cale Stubbe earned second-team all-Big 12 honors and center Luke Vander Sanden received honorable mention all-league recognition.

Employing a balanced offense that has so well-served Cotton during his career, the Cyclones came on late in 2004, averaging 404.8 yards per game in the final four contests of the regular season. No surprise here, as Cotton had already made a positive impact after successful tenures at Nebraska and New Mexico State.

Prior to arriving at ISU, Cotton was the offensive coordinator of a Nebraska offense that ranked seventh nationally in rushing en route to a 10-3 record and a win over Michigan State in the 2003

Ben, Christine, Barney, Sam and Jake Cotton

Alamo Bowl.

The 2003 campaign was Cotton's first season on the coaching staff at Nebraska, his alma mater. The Huskers rushed for more than 250 yards in seven games that season and averaged 235.6 rushing yards per game. Just the third offensive coordinator at Nebraska since 1973, Cotton also coached the offensive line in 2003. Despite losing depth and rest time due to numerous injuries, four Husker linemen earned all-conference honors, led by Richie Incognito, who was a first-team all-Big 12 honoree and an Outland and Lombardi watch list member. Josh Sewell, Mike Erickson and Dan Vili Waldrop each earned honorable-mention all-conference honors.

An Omaha native, Cotton joined the Nebraska football staff as offensive coordinator after six seasons on New Mexico State's coaching staff. The 50-year-old Cotton served as the Aggies' assistant head coach and offensive coordinator and also tutored the offensive line. Under his direction, the Aggies ranked in the top 25 nationally in total offense three times in six seasons: 13th (1998), 17th (2000) and 23rd (2002). The NMSU offense ranked among the top 25 teams nationally in rushing offense in each of Cotton's six seasons as offensive coordinator.

The Aggie offense showed great diversity in 2002. New Mexico State rushed for 200 yards or more in eight of 12 games while throwing for 200 or more yards four times. In the season's final two games, NMSU threw for 335 yards against league champion North Texas and 343 the following week against Idaho. The Aggies led the Sun Belt Conference in passing efficiency, rushing offense and total offense in 2002.

Cotton was a three-year letterman at Nebraska (1976-78), starting on both the offensive and defensive lines for head coach Tom Osborne. Following his college career, Cotton was selected to play in the 1978 East-West Shrine Game and was a third-round draft pick of the Cincinnati Bengals in 1979. After one season in Cincinnati, Cotton joined the St. Louis Cardinals for three seasons (1980-82). A knee injury forced his retirement after the 1982 season.

After his NFL career and assistant coaching stops, Cotton gained experience as a head coach at Hastings College in 1995 and 1996. In 1995, the Broncos won the Nebraska-Iowa Athletic Conference championship and made an appearance in the NAIA playoffs. Cotton was named the 1995 Nebraska-Iowa Conference Coach of the Year.

Cotton earned a bachelor's degree from Nebraska in 1983 and a master's degree in athletic administration from St. Cloud State in 1994. Cotton and his wife Christine have three sons (Ben, Jake and Sam).

John Skladany

Central Connecticut State '72

Defensive Coordinator
Linebacker Coach
10th Season

John Skladany has engineered major defensive reversals of fortune at Iowa State, a significant factor in the ISU football program's five bowl appearances in the last six years. The facts speak for themselves. Most notably, Iowa State's performance against the rush improved in each of Skladany's initial six seasons in Ames. The season before Skladany's arrival in Ames (1996), the Cyclones allowed 262 rushing yards per game. The figure stood at a post-World War II best 139.2 yards in 2004. The record was short-lived. Iowa State allowed only 102.7 rushing yards per game last season. Skladany's charges allowed just 10 rushing touchdowns last season, a school-record low.

In 1997, Iowa State allowed 44.8 points per game. That total dropped to 21 points per game in 2001 and then to 19.2 points per game last season, the lowest Iowa State total since 1980. The 19.4 points allowed per conference game last season was an ISU best since 1981. Skladany's makeover of ISU's defensive schemes improved Iowa State's total defense numbers from 484.0 ypg in 1996 to 329.4 ypg in 2004.

The stats say it all. It was no surprise that the Big 12 coaches voted nose guard Nick Leaders and cornerback LaMarcus Hicks first-team all-Big 12. Middle linebacker Tim Dobbins, the 2004 Big 12 Defensive Newcomer of the Year, earned second-team honors along with defensive tackle Brent Curvey and safety Steve Paris. Dobbins was a fifth-round draft pick of the San Diego Chargers. Leaders and Paris signed contracts with the Baltimore Ravens and Hicks signed with the Detroit Lions. Defensive back Ellis Hobbs, who started for the New England Patriots in 2005, earned first-team all-conference honors and was the defensive MVP in Iowa State's win over Miami University in the 2004 Independence Bowl.

The Cyclones ranked first among the Big 12 division in total defense last season for the fourth time in five years. Skladany's aggressive style of defense forced 23 turnovers in 2000, 26 turnovers in 2001, 25 in 2004 and a Big 12-leading 35 last season. Iowa State, which ranked 108th nationally in turnover margin in 1999, improved to 34th nationally in 2000 and then to eighth in the country in 2001. The Cyclones ranked second in the Big 12 and 12th nationally in turnover margin in 2004. Last season, they led the conference in that category and ranked seventh nationally.

The Cyclones set a school record for sacks (32) in 1998. Among Skladany's 2000 defenders was defensive end Reggie Hayward, who plays for the Jacksonville Jaguars in his sixth NFL season. Hayward has made 27 1/2 NFL sacks over the last three seasons. Another member of that Insight.com Bowl defensive front was tackle James Reed. Reed is now in his sixth NFL season. He now plays in the defensive line for the Kansas City Chiefs after making a career-high 65 tackles for the New York Jets in 2005.

Despite losing seven starters from that 2000 unit, Skladany's 2001 Iowa State defenders posted ISU's best total defensive numbers since 1992, dropping its yards allowed per contest by 60 in one season. Iowa State recorded a pair of shutouts in a single campaign for the first time since 1978. Defensive tackle Jordan Carstens, who had 35 tackles and four sacks last season for the Carolina Panthers of the NFL, earned all-Big 12 honors in 2001. Carstens repeated as an all-league choice in 2002, joining strong safety JaMaine Billups. In 2003, defensive end Jason Berryman was the Big 12 Defensive Freshman of the Year.

Skladany played a key role on the Colorado State coaching staff that turned the Ram defense into a unit that led the Western Athletic Conference. With Skladany coaching the defensive line, Colorado State won WAC team titles in 1994 and 1995. Among Skladany's top performers at CSU was 1995 WAC Defensive Player of the Year Brady Smith. The defensive lineman led the nation in sacks and tackles that season. Smith was joined on that defensive front by Sean Moran, who earned first-team all-WAC honors. Smith has played 10 NFL seasons, the last six for the Atlanta Falcons. Moran played eight years in the NFL. Defensive end Clark Haggans, who also played for Skladany at CSU, plays for the Pittsburgh Steelers.

Colorado State made Holiday Bowl appearances in 1994 and 1995 under head coach Sonny Lubick. The Rams won 25 games over the last three seasons of Skladany's term at CSU.

Skladany played football at Central Connecticut State, earning a bachelor's degree in 1972. The Haverhill, Mass., native had NFL free agent tryouts as a defensive lineman with the New England Patriots in 1972 and the Washington Redskins in 1973. He played for the WFL's Birmingham Americans in 1974 and spent the 1975 exhibition season with the Ottawa Roughriders of the CFL.

Skladany came to Colorado State after serving two seasons as the defensive backs coach at Northern Arizona (1990-92) and one campaign coaching the Lumberjack defensive line.

The 58-year-old Skladany coached at Ohio University from 1985-89, as secondary coach (1985-87) and then as defensive coordinator (1988-89). He began his coaching career at Ohio as a graduate assistant (1976-77). Skladany owns a master's degree from Ohio. He also coached at Maine (1981-84) and the U.S. Merchant Marine Academy (1980) after a two-year stint at Utica (Ohio) High School. Skladany and his wife Sharon have two daughters (Laura, Stephanie).

Chris Ash

Drake '96

Recruiting Coordinator
Secondary Coach
Seventh Season

Chris Ash joined the Iowa State coaching staff in February 2000 and has developed a record-setting ISU secondary. Iowa State intercepted a Big 12-best 22 passes last season, the highest number of picks by a Cyclone team since 1976. ISU ranked 20th nationally in pass efficiency defense among 119 NCAA Division I-A schools in 2005.

The rewards for outstanding efforts are still coming in, as Ash's secondary dominated conference statistics charts. Cornerback De-Andre Jackson has been a team leader. His five interceptions tied him for the 2005 Big 12 lead. The honorable mention all-Big 12 performer had 55 tackles, broke up eight passes and forced four fumbles.

Cornerback LaMarcus Hicks evolved from a nickel defender into one of the conference's top defensive backs in 2005, earning first-team all-Big 12 Conference honors from the league's coaches. Jackson (T-1st/5), Hicks (T-1st/5), strong safety Nik Moser (T-5th/4) and free safety Steve Paris (T-7th/3) ranked among the conference's top defenders in interceptions last season. Paris was a second-team all-Big 12 choice by the league's coaches. The NFL took notice. Hicks signed a free agent contract with the Detroit Lions after the NFL Draft. Paris signed with the Baltimore Ravens.

All four of Ash's starters put up big numbers in 2005. Hicks started every game and made 55 tackles while breaking up seven passes. The Clarksdale, Miss., native, was the Big 12 Defensive Player of the Week after returning an interception for a touchdown, forcing a fumble and breaking up a pass in Iowa State's 23-3 win over Iowa on Sept. 10. Moser, from Fort Dodge, Iowa, made 196 career tackles and seven interceptions. Paris, from Dallas, Texas, made 188 career tackles and had a key 66-yard fumble return for a touchdown in Iowa State's 2005 win over Colorado. Paris was named the Big 12 Defensive Player of the Week after making two interceptions and six tackles at Army last season.

In 2004, the secondary was a major factor in Iowa State's fourth bowl appearance in five years, making 17 interceptions, the second-best mark in the Big 12 Conference. ISU ranked third in the Big 12 in pass efficiency defense, and the Cyclones were third in the league and 20th nationally in pass defense.

ISU cornerback Ellis Hobbs was a first-team all-Big 12 selection by the conference's writers and coaches in

Chris, Tanner, Jacey and Jessica Ash

2004. He played all four of his seasons under Ash's tutelage. Hobbs finished his career with 209 tackles and tied for sixth in career interceptions on the all-time ISU chart with nine. The last play of his career was an interception that iced Iowa State's 17-13 win over Miami University in the 2004 Independence Bowl. He now starts for the New England Patriots of the National Football League.

JaMaine Billups, who earned all-conference honors after switching from tailback to safety during fall two-a-day football practices in 2002, also played for Ash.

Ash was formerly defensive coordinator at Drake when the Bulldogs won the 1998 Pioneer Conference title. Drake ranked eighth nationally in 1999 NCAA Division I-AA total defense in his second Bulldog season, as four Drake defenders earned all-conference honors.

A native of Ottumwa, Iowa, Ash lettered twice as a safety at Drake. The 32-year-old Ash earned a bachelor's degree in secondary education from Drake in 1996. After working one year as a graduate assistant with the Drake secondary, he moved on to Princeton in the spring of 1997, where he worked with the Tiger secondary.

Ash and his wife, Jessica, have two children (Tanner, Jacey).

Todd Fitch

Ohio Wesleyan '86

Passing Game
Coordinator
Quarterbacks Coach
Third Season

Todd Fitch, who has worked under legendary head coaches Don Nehlen, Earle Bruce and Lou Holtz, joined the Iowa State coaching staff as quarterbacks coach in January of 2004. Fitch's extensive experience has paid big dividends for junior quarterback Bret Meyer, who is the 2006 preseason first-team all-Big 12 quarterback after throwing for 2,876 yards last fall, the second-best single-season total in school history. ISU head coach Dan McCarney promoted Fitch to passing game coordinator in February.

Meyer's sophomore season trumped an outstanding freshman All-America campaign. The Atlantic, Iowa, native was second in the Big 12, averaging 239.7 yards passing per game last season. Meyer's 2005 pass efficiency stats rank him as the No. 2 rated quarterback in school single-season history. He threw 19 touchdown passes with just 10 interceptions. At one point last season, Meyer ran off a streak of 155 pass attempts without an interception, a school record.

Meyer's development has been steady under Fitch's guidance. When the final seconds ticked off the clock in Iowa State's 17-13 2004 Independence Bowl win over Miami University, Meyer was named the game's offensive MVP. His 1,926 passing yards ranks 10th on the all-time ISU single-season list and is the best freshman mark in school history.

Though he has only played in 24 games, Meyer's 4,802 career passing yards rank fourth on the all-time ISU list, just ahead of Sage Rosenfels of the Houston Texans and former Atlanta Falcons quarterback David Archer. Meyer's 29 career TD passes rank third in ISU history just ahead of current Seattle Seahawk Seneca Wallace and just behind former Kansas City Chiefs quarterback Alex Espinoza.

Fitch was the South Carolina quarterbacks coach in 2003 after a year as running backs coach and three seasons as the Gamecocks' wide receivers coach -- all under Holtz. During Fitch's tenure at USC, the Gamecocks appeared in the 2001 and 2002 Outback Bowls.

A pair of Gamecock seniors -- fullback Andrew Pinnock and tailback Ryan Brewer -- both concluded outstanding careers in 2002. Pinnock finished his stint as a Gamecock with 27 career touchdowns, tied for third best in school history. Pinnock played in the East-West Shrine Game and was drafted by the San Diego Chargers. Brewer goes down as one of the most popular players in Carolina history, as the versatile performer was the epitome of the blue-collar college football player. Brewer played in the Hula Bowl.

Todd, Curtis, Julie and Peyton Fitch

Wide receiver Brian Scott prospered under Fitch's coaching, winning the team's MVP honors in 2001. Scott was the team's leading receiver and had a clutch touchdown catch in the closing moments to lift Carolina to a comeback victory at Georgia.

Fitch coached the USC wide receivers to improved productivity in 2000. Players such as Jermale Kelly, Brian Scott and Brewer were very consistent in catching the football, and the USC passing game reaped dividends as a result. Kelly climbed up near the top of the USC career receiving list and was named team captain and team MVP for the 2000 season.

Fitch came to the Gamecock program from Connecticut, where he worked under Skip Holtz. Fitch was on the staff at UConn for five seasons and coordinated the offense for the Huskies in his final three years. In 1998, UConn won a school-record 10 games and featured a high-powered and prolific offensive attack.

With Fitch coordinating the offense, Husky quarterbacks set school records for passing yardage, touchdown passes and passing efficiency. UConn was nationally ranked four of the five years Fitch was there. Under Coach Fitch's tutelage in 1998, UConn quarterback Shane Stafford finished his career eighth on the list for passing efficiency in the history of Division I-AA.

Fitch, an Ohio native, is a 1986 graduate of Ohio Wesleyan, where he was a three-year starter at defensive back and an all-league performer in 1985.

Following his playing career, Fitch moved on to an assistant coaching position at Ohio Wesleyan from 1986-87. He then accepted a graduate assistant position at Bowling Green for one year in 1988 and a volunteer coaching position at West Virginia in 1989. He was the wide receivers coach for two years at Bowling Green. Two of his wide receivers were drafted in the NFL.

The 42-year-old Fitch moved to Colorado State, where he worked as the running backs coach and special teams coordinator for two seasons. His starting fullback played in the NFL, and his starting tailback was selected to play in the East-West Shrine Game.

Fitch then moved to UConn, where he was Skip Holtz's offensive coordinator.

He and his wife Julie have two children (Curtis, Peyton).

Mike Grant

Nebraska '92

Wide Receivers Coach
Ninth Season

Mike Grant has coached wide receivers at Iowa State the past three seasons, and his crew of pass catchers has broken a slew of ISU school records. Grant's group of Cyclones are adding new pages to the Iowa State record book.

Figuring most prominently is junior Todd Blythe, a preseason All-America choice. The Indianola, Iowa native has caught a school-record 18 career touchdown passes in just 24 games. A first-team all-Big 12 Conference selection last season by the league's coaches, Blythe's 90 career catches already ranks 10th in school history. His 1,833 career receiving yards in two years rank fourth in the ISU record books. Blythe caught 51 passes for 1,000 yards and nine touchdowns last season. Blythe is the third Cyclone to ever reach 1,000 receiving yards in a single season. His 19.6 yards per catch was the second-longest average nationally among receivers who caught at least four passes a game. Senior wide receiver Jon Davis is tied with Blythe at 10th in school history with 90 career receptions.

Blythe and Davis aside, the best story is Deer Park, Texas, native Austin Flynn, who was Iowa State's starting quarterback in 2003. Flynn switched to wide receiver during 2005 spring practice. With Grant's guidance, Flynn's transition to his new position has been spectacular. The senior led Iowa State with 56 catches for 624 yards and three touchdowns last season.

ISU began the 2004 season with a bevy of question marks surrounding its young group of receivers. Gone were four 2003 seniors who were responsible for more than 6,000 receiving yards during their careers. Returning that fall was a group of young players that had combined for four career receptions. Blythe and Davis had strong 2004 seasons as Grant retooled his receiving corps with new blood. Blythe was a second-team All-America (The Sporting News) selection. Davis led the Cyclones with 48 catches for 614 yards and a pair of TDs. Senior Todd Miller had 31 catches for 341 yards, and freshman Milan Moses had 14 receptions for 155 yards.

Under Grant, wide receivers Lane Danielsen, Jack Whitver, Lance Young and Jamaul Montgomery finished their careers in 2003 as the most prolific receiving corps in Iowa State history. That quartet tallied career totals of 433 receptions for 6,373 yards and 37 touchdowns.

With Grant as receivers coach, Danielsen became the all-time Cyclone career leader with 163 receptions for 2,690 yards. Whitver, like Danielsen a former walk-on, ranks eighth on the ISU career receptions chart (96) and 12th in receiving yards (1,320). Young ranks 12th all-time in receiving yards (1,273).

Grant coached the Cyclone backfield in 2001. That fall, first-team all-Big 12 tailback Ennis Haywood became the seventh Iowa

Nina, Mireia and Mike Grant

Stater to post at least two 1,000-yard rushing seasons, finishing the 2001 campaign with 1,169 yards on the ground. Iowa State's tailbacks went the entire season without losing a fumble.

In 2000, as outside linebackers coach, Grant made significant contributions to ISU's Insight.com Bowl drive by working with two Cyclones who made unique transitions to defense for the first Iowa State bowl season in 22 years.

Under Grant's guidance, ISU linebacker Derrick Walker made a successful transition from quarterback to defense. Walker, who was Iowa State's backup signal-caller in 1999, was fifth on the team in tackles with 61 in 2000 and earned an invitation to the preseason camp of the NFL's Philadelphia Eagles. Cyclone linebacker Stevie Johnson, formerly one of the most popular basketball players in school history who hadn't played football since high school, prospered on the gridiron under Grant and came on strong late in Iowa State's Insight.com Bowl season.

Grant joined the Iowa State staff as assistant secondary coach before 1998 spring practice. The year before Grant's arrival, Iowa State ranked 107th nationally in pass defense. That ranking improved to 29th in 1999, his second season coaching the Cyclone secondary. ISU's pass efficiency defensive rating improved from 153.3 in the season before Grant came to Ames to 111.5 in 1999. Cyclone pass defenders increased their interception total and decreased their TD passes allowed and passing yards allowed totals in each of Grant's first two Cyclone seasons.

Grant, who lettered at quarterback on three Nebraska bowl teams, came to ISU from James Madison, where he coached the Dukes' tight ends and wide receivers.

The 36-year-old Grant was an academic all-Big Eight quarterback on Nebraska teams that earned three Orange Bowl berths, in addition to Fiesta and Citrus Bowl appearances, during his playing career. The native of Tampa, Fla., earned a pair of bachelor's degrees from Nebraska and has completed all but the thesis for his master's degree in mass communication from Nebraska.

Grant was a graduate assistant coach working with the Husker tight ends and wide receivers from 1994-96. This experience included being a part of two Nebraska national championship teams. Grant assisted the Nebraska recruiting coordinator in 1993.

Grant and his wife Nina have a daughter (Mireia). Nina is the director of multicultural programs in ISU's College of Agriculture.

Mike Nelson

Dayton '69

Defensive Line Coach
10th Season

Mike Nelson's impact on the Iowa State defense was immediate and has remained constant. The steady drop in Iowa State's total defense numbers and a record-setting effort against the rush the last two seasons underscores Nelson's contributions to five Cyclone bowl seasons in the last six years. Iowa State allowed just 139.2 rushing yards per game in 2004, the best Cyclone performance against the run since World War II. The 2005 Houston Bowl defense destroyed that record, allowing just 102.7 rushing yards per game. Nelson's men in the trenches allowed opponents just 2.98 yards per carry last season, bettering the post-World War II school record of 3.15 set by the "Dirty Thirty" Cyclones of 1959.

Several key performers who have tutored under Nelson have received national recognition for their stubbornness up front. Nose guard Nick Leaders was named a first-team all-Big 12 selection by the league's coaches. The Omaha, Neb. native finished his career with 262 career tackles, 15 sacks and 33 1/2 tackles for loss. Defensive tackle Brent "Big Play" Curvey, who has thrived under Nelson's guidance, made 61 tackles last season with eight sacks and a blocked kick to go with a 66-yard interception return that iced Iowa State's win over No. 22 Colorado.

Nelson has also overseen the development of former walk-on defensive end Shawn Moorehead. The senior became a starter and made 34 tackles last season. Defensive end Jason Berryman, who started as a true freshman in 2003 and earned the Big 12 Conference defensive newcomer of the year award, led all freshmen defensive tackles in NCAA Division I-A with 110 stops that fall. He had a great 2005 campaign, with 72 tackles and 7 1/2 sacks.

In 1997, Nelson's first season at ISU, the Cyclone defensive line figured prominently by racking up 21 sacks, the highest Cyclone single-season total in 10 years. In 1998, ISU sacked opposing quarterbacks a school-record 32 times. Defensive tackle James Reed earned all-Big 12 honors and defensive end Reggie Hayward earned all-league recognition in 1999 and 2000. Both are now in the NFL.

In 2000, Iowa State's defensive line of Hayward, Reed, Ryan Harklau, Kevin DeRonde and Nigel Tharpe gave the Cyclones their best defensive line in more than a decade. The Cyclones forced 23 turnovers as Hayward earned first-team all-Big 12 honors and Reed finished the regular season as the No. 2 all-time career tackler among down linemen in Iowa State history. After ISU's 2000 Insight.com

Mark, Mike, Betsy, Mary, Joann, Tommy, Kurt, Jack, Eric & Ann

Bowl campaign, Hayward played four successful years with the NFL's Denver Broncos and is starting his second season with the Jacksonville Jaguars. Reed was a 2001 opening-day starter for the New York Jets and now plays for the Kansas City Chiefs.

ISU's interior defenders earned more honors in 2001, as sophomore defensive tackle Jordan Carstens was an all-Big 12 selection by the league's coaches en route to an Independence Bowl berth. Carstens earned all-Big 12 honors again on the coaches' team in 2002. Iowa State ranked among the league's top five teams with 29 sacks that fall. He is in his third season with the NFL's Carolina Panthers.

Nelson's résumé includes trips to a pair of bowl games under Dave McClain at Wisconsin. Under current Arizona Cardinals head coach Dennis Green, Nelson went to the 1991 Aloha Bowl at Stanford.

The 57-year-old Nelson has served coaching stints at Missouri (1985-86) and Kansas State (1989). The Chicago native coached the defensive line at both schools. He also spent three seasons coaching linebackers and the defensive line for Edmonton of the Canadian Football League. The Eskimos made the CFL playoffs in each of those seasons.

Nelson started his coaching career at Southern Illinois before spending one season in the Ohio high school ranks. He worked as defensive coordinator at Norfolk State (1972) before returning to his alma mater, Dayton, in 1973. Nelson was the Flyers' defensive ends and linebackers coach. He then moved to Virginia (1975-76) as the secondary coach and to Ball State, where he was outside linebackers coach under McClain. Nelson followed McClain to Wisconsin, where he was part of the Badger turnaround. He spent five seasons as outside linebackers coach at Wisconsin.

Nelson jumped to the CFL for three seasons before moving to Missouri and then San Diego State, where he coached inside linebackers and the defensive line. He was the defensive line coach at Rutgers (1993-95) for three seasons before going to Oregon State.

A graduate of Chicago's St. Laurence High School, Nelson earned his bachelor's degree from Dayton in 1969. He was a four-year letterwinner for the Flyer football squad and also lettered in hockey. He earned his master's degree at Southern Illinois in 1970. Nelson is married to the former Betsy Nelson. The couple has three sons (Kurt, Eric, Mark).

Brian Schneider

Colorado State '94

Tight Ends and Special Teams Coach
First Season

Former UCLA assistant coach Brian Schneider, whose Bruin punt return team averaged 25 yards per return in 2005, joined the Iowa State coaching staff in February as tight ends coach and special teams coordinator. Schneider was an all-conference linebacker at Colorado State, where he was a teammate of current ISU running backs coach Tony Alford on a Ram team coached by former Iowa State head coach Earle Bruce. Schneider then played under and later coached at Colorado State with Iowa State defensive coordinator John Skladany.

In 2005, several of Schneider's special teams units ranked among the best in the nation. Maurice Drew led the nation in punt returns with an NCAA-record 28.5 average, including three touchdowns. The Bruin team punt return average of 25 yards per return led the nation and narrowly missed the NCAA record (25.2). UCLA ranked fifth in the Pac-10, with a net punting average of 35.7 yards. Schneider also coached the safeties in 2005.

UCLA's special teams success under Schneider was no fluke. In 2004, Schneider took charge of all Bruin special teams units in addition to coaching the outside linebackers and nickel backs. His schemes helped the Bruins lead the Pac-10 and rank fourth nationally with a net punting average of 40.6 yards. UCLA's kickoff return unit ranked fourth in the Pac-10, averaging 22.08 yards per return. UCLA also led the Pac-10 and ranked ninth nationally in punt returns (15.03 average). The Bruins also blocked six kicks. UCLA punter Chris Kluwe was a finalist for the 2004 Ray Guy Award, presented annually to the nation's top punter, and place-kicker Justin Medlock was named first-team all-Pac-10.

In 2003, he served as coach of the Bruin outside linebackers and nickel backs, as well as the punt and punt return teams. Kluwe ranked 26th in the nation in punting and set a school record for punts and punt yardage. Return man Craig Bragg set a school mark with 38 punt returns for that season.

Schneider came to UCLA after serving the previous six seasons as tight ends and special teams coordinator at Colorado State. During his tenure at CSU, the Rams excelled in special teams play. Schneider coached eight all-conference special teams or tight end performers including Dexter Wynn (2002 and 2001), Joey Huber (2001), Pete Rebstock (2001, 2000), Jose Ochoa (2000), Deone Horinek (1999), Darran Hall (1997) and Eli Workman (1997).

Brian, Joel, Joby, Jaden, Jace and Kelli Schneider

In 2002, Wynn ranked fifth nationally in punt returns and 12th in kickoff returns. In 2001, Rebstock and Wynn both ranked among the national leaders in returns while Huber was among the national leaders in punting average. He also ranks among the school's all-time punting leaders. Colorado State ranked among the national leaders in 2001 and 2000 in net punting.

Ram place-kicker Kent Naughton had one of the top field goal percentage marks in school history and was the only kicker in the Mountain West Conference to successfully convert every PAT opportunity. In 1999, punter Deone Horinek ranked eighth nationally and second in the league while earning second-team all-conference honors. In 1998, place-kicker Derek Franz set the school's season scoring record and the record for most field goals in a season. Franz also ranked first in the league and fifth nationally in field goals per game.

Tight end Eli Workman was a first-team All-Western Athletic Conference selection in 1997 and was selected to play in the East-West Shrine All-Star game following the season. Schneider, 35, spent three seasons (1994-96) as a graduate assistant coach at Colorado State, working with the team's defensive unit and special teams prior to moving to full-time status in 1997.

Schneider was a three-year starter and four-year letterwinner for the Rams as a linebacker from 1990-93 and is regarded as one of the finest players at his position in Colorado State history. As a senior in 1993, he was named first-team all-conference and was an honorable mention All-American. He was a second-team all-league choice in 1992. Schneider still ranks among the school's career leaders in total tackles.

Schneider earned his bachelor's degree from Colorado State in 1994. Born in San Diego, Calif., he and his wife, Kelli, have a daughter, Jaden (7) and three sons, Jace (6), Joby (4) and Joel (2).

Shawn Simms

Bowling Green, '86

Linebackers Coach First Season

Simms joins the ISU staff as outside linebackers coach after coaching running backs for three seasons at Colorado. His experience includes stops at Illinois, Ohio State and Pittsburgh. At Colorado, he tutored Bobby Purify in 2004, the 12th player in school history to run for 1,000 yards in a single season. Simms, 43, joined the CU staff after coaching the running backs for two seasons at the University of Pittsburgh.

Simms earned his bachelor's degree in business education from Bowling Green in 1986, where he lettered as a linebacker and was an all-Mid America Conference performer as a senior in 1984. His first taste of coaching came in 1985 with Heidelberg in nearby Tiffin, Ohio, as he coached the linebackers one year and the secondary in another while finishing up his degree at Bowling Green. He then moved on to San Diego State, where he spent one season (1987) as a defensive grad assistant; while at SDSU, he studied in its master's program in educational administration.

His first full-time position was as running backs coach with Oberlin, where he worked one year (1988) before accepting his first full-time Division I-A job with Miami University (Ohio).

After two seasons as outside linebackers coach with Miami (1989-90), he moved on to Toledo, where he again coached the running backs for four seasons (1991-94). Simms then spent the 1995 and 1996 seasons as running backs coach at Illinois, where he tutored Robert Holcombe, who set single game, season and career rushing records for the Fighting Illini. Holcombe went on to earn a Super Bowl ring with the 1999 St. Louis Rams.

Simms moved on to Ohio State for the 1997 through 1999 seasons, switching sides of the ball to coach defensive ends, including standout performers James Cotton and Rodney Bailey, future NFL draft picks. He also recruited four players who saw extensive action for the Buckeyes on their 2002 national championship team, including starting defensive end Will Smith.

Prior to joining the Pittsburgh staff in 2001, he coached the running backs at Rutgers for the 2000 season. At Pitt, he coached junior Brandon Miree, who gained 943 yards in 2002 to help lead Pittsburgh to a 9-4 record and near upset of No. 1 Miami.

He was born February 15, 1963 in Fremont, Ohio, and graduated from Fremont's Ross High School, where he lettered in football, basketball, baseball and track. His half brother, Charles Woodson, won the Heisman Trophy in 1997 as a collegian at Michigan and is currently with the Oakland Raiders. He is married to the former Victoria Trail and the couple has two boys, Tre' (9) and Trent (4).

Don Knock

Central College '76

Director of Football Operations
Fifth Season

Don Knock, a member of the Iowa Football Coaches Hall of Fame, returned to Iowa State after a year as offensive coordinator and offensive line coach at Nebraska-Omaha, joining the ISU staff in July 2002 as director of football operations. Knock coached Cedar Rapids Kennedy to six state playoff berths in his final 10 prep seasons at the Cougar helm and coached Grundy Center to the 1984 Iowa Class 2A state high school title. Knock, who owned a career prep coaching record of 128-85, helped coach the Cyclone offensive line as a graduate assistant during the 2000 season. Knock is a member of the Cedar Rapids-Kennedy High School Hall of Fame.

The 52-year-old Knock was the starting offensive guard on Central College's 1974 NCAA Division III national title squad. Central defeated Ithaca (N.Y.) College in the Amos Alonzo Stagg Bowl. He was a captain of the 1975 Central football team and earned a bachelor's degree there in 1976. The Parkersburg, Iowa, native signed a free agent contract with the Oakland Raiders after graduation and joined the Central College coaching staff under Ron Schipper later that fall.

Knock was a head coach in the 1991 Iowa prep North-South Shrine Bowl game and was an assistant coach for the 1983 contest.

Knock began his coaching career in 1977 at Rockwell-Swaledale, where he taught and was head football coach. After three years at Rockwell-Swaledale, Knock spent one academic year at South Dakota, where he was graduate assistant offensive backfield coach while earning a master's degree.

Knock moved to Grundy Center in 1981, where his teams compiled a 48-11 record and twice qualified for the state playoffs under Iowa's former eight-team bracket formula. He moved on to Cedar Rapids Kennedy in 1987, where his teams were 66-61.

A past president of the Iowa Football Coaches Association, he served on the IFCA's board of directors for 15 years. Knock and his wife Cindy have four sons (Kyle, an ISU graduate and former tight end on Iowa State's football team; Scot, ISU's assistant director of football operations; Beau, 20 and Jordan, 11).

Matt McGettigan

Luther '87

Strength & Conditioning
Head Coach
12th Season

The work of strength and conditioning coach Matt McGettigan received the ultimate affirmation of excellence when he earned recognition as the 2001 National Collegiate Strength and Conditioning Coach of the Year by the Professional Football Strength and Conditioning Coaches Society. The award underscored the respect McGettigan has from his peers, the Iowa State coaching staff and Cyclone football student-athletes as he is in his 12th ISU season.

The stature of Iowa State's football program has literally grown by leaps and bounds since Dan McCarney came to Ames. Much of the credit for those improvements must go to McGettigan. McGettigan came to Iowa State with McCarney after serving as assistant strength and conditioning coach at Notre Dame since 1990.

Prior to his work with the Fighting Irish, McGettigan served as the strength and conditioning coordinator for Wisconsin-Platteville from 1987-90. McGettigan earned his master's degree in 1989.

The 41-year-old McGettigan completed his undergraduate work in physical education at Luther College in Decorah, Iowa, in 1987, where he was a member of the football team. He is a member of the National Strength and Conditioning Association. In January 1989, McGettigan received his certification as a Strength and Conditioning Specialist.

A native of Darlington, Wis., McGettigan is married to the former Darla Hook of Charles City, Iowa. They have two children (Mariah, Colin).

Mike Motl

Wisconsin '90

Video Coordinator
12th Season

Mike Motl joined the Cyclone staff in July of 1995. He creates highlight and instructional videos for Iowa State athletics and oversees operation of a digital network used for scouting opponents, making highlight videos, teaching and training tapes and Iowa State football self-study video. He was named 2001 and 2002 Big 12 Conference Video Director of the Year.

Motl has coordinated Iowa State's transition to SAT (Smart Acquisition Technology), the digital video recording of Cyclone practice and games, making ISU one of the few NCAA Division I-A programs employing this technology.

From 1990-95, Motl worked as a video assistant at Wisconsin. He was a member of the Badger staff that went to the 1994 Rose Bowl. Motl received his bachelor's degree from Wisconsin in 1990.

Motl hails from Marshall, Wis., and is a member of the College Sports Video Association. He and his wife Jill have a two-year-old son (Joshua).

Scot Knock

Iowa State '04

Assistant Director of Football Operations
Seventh Season

Scot Knock is in his seventh season at Iowa State. He assists head coach Dan McCarney and director of football operations Don Knock with day-to-day operations of the ISU football program.

Knock's responsibilities include task and time management of Cyclone football office personnel, supervision of interns and work-study students and guidance to players on academic situations and social relations. He assists in organization of team travel, summer alumni functions, team banquets, community service projects, summer job coordinating and recruiting. As an assistant camp and clinic director, he has been responsible for the organization and operations of summer camps involving more than 1,500 student-athletes and high school coaches each summer.

The Cedar Rapids, Iowa, native earned his bachelor's degree in liberal studies from Iowa State in 2004. He is currently pursuing a master's degree in higher education at ISU. His father, Don, is the director of operations for the Cyclone football program. Knock's eldest brother, Kyle, was a tight end for Iowa State from 1998-2002.

Chris Ruf

Luther '99

Strength & Conditioning
Assistant Coach
Eighth Season

Chris Ruf is in his eighth season at Iowa State and his fourth as assistant strength and conditioning coach. He worked as a student assistant under Matt McGettigan from 1999-2002. He was a part-time assistant coach during the 2002-03 school year. He joined the ISU staff as a full-time assistant in 2003.

A native of Hartley, Iowa, he graduated from Luther College in 1999 with a bachelor's degree in health and physical education and a minor in athletic training. While at Luther, he lettered as a member of the football team. Ruf earned his master's degree in exercise science from Iowa State in 2003.

Ruf received certification for the National Strength and Conditioning Association in 2000. He and his wife Megan live in Ames.

Bo
Beck

Colorado State '02

Graduate Assistant
Defense
Third Season

Bo Beck is in his third season as a graduate assistant. A native of Woodland Park, Colo., Beck played football at Arizona State and Colorado State, earning his bachelor's degree in sociology from CSU in 2002. He received his master's degree in adult education and leadership performance from Drake in 2005. Beck is slated to receive a master's degree in higher education and administration from Iowa State in 2006.

Beck formerly worked for Contemporary Service Corporation, a business that addresses security issues for the National Football League. He has worked at six Super Bowls.

Beck served as the defensive coordinator at Fort Collins (Colo.) High School and was a member of the Drake football staff prior to arriving in Ames.

Erik
Link

Drake '02

Graduate Assistant
Offense
First Season

Erik Link is in his first season as a graduate assistant coach at Iowa State. Link came to ISU from Drake, where he was an assistant coach in 2005 and a graduate assistant in 2004. Link, a 2003 Drake graduate in secondary education, was Bulldog defensive line coach at his alma mater last season. Defensive tackle Chris Daniels earned second-team All-America honors in 2005. Link also coordinated the Drake offensive scout team last fall.

Link coached at Des Moines North High School, his prep alma mater in 2003. He was an honorable mention all-Pioneer Football League offensive lineman at Drake, where he lettered three times and was a two-year starter.

ISU President Dr. Gregory Geoffroy

Dr. Gregory L. Geoffroy became president of Iowa State University on July 1, 2001, after serving as provost and senior vice president at the University of Maryland, College Park, for four years, and as a faculty member and administrator at Penn State University for 23 years. He also holds the faculty rank of professor of chemistry at Iowa State.

Dr. Geoffroy is leading Iowa State in achieving its vision of becoming the best in advancing the land-grant ideals of education, research and service, and in putting science and technology to work. He continues Iowa State's path of being recognized around the world as a leading research university, a student-centered university that provides a top quality education to its students, and an invaluable resource for Iowa, the nation and the world.

He is a people-centered president. He spends much of his time getting out and around the campus, the community and the state of Iowa, visiting with students, parents and the people of Iowa to learn more about how Iowa State can better meet their needs. He frequently spends time meeting with students in residence halls, dining centers and fraternity and sorority chapters, and participating in student events on campus.

Dr. Geoffroy is an avid supporter of Cyclone athletics, and he serves as the Big 12 Conference's representative on the NCAA Division I Board of Directors.

A nationally known researcher in organometallic chemistry, Dr. Geoffroy has published more than 200 research articles in refereed journals and presented more than 200 invited lectures throughout the United States and in nine other nations. He is co-author of the book Organometallic Photochemistry, and has directed the work of 37 doctoral students and 15 post-doctoral scholars.

His teaching and research have earned him fellowships from the Alfred P. Sloan Foundation and John Simon Guggenheim Foundation, visiting professorships to major universities in Germany and France, the Dreyfus Foundation Teacher-Scholar Award, and, in 1991, election as a Fellow in the American Association for the Advancement of Science. He has served in several leadership capacities in the Association for Universities for Research in Astronomy and in the American Chemical Society's Division of Inorganic Chemistry.

Dr. Geoffroy received a bachelor's with honors degree from the University of Louisville in 1968, served as an officer in the United States Navy from 1969-70, and earned his doctorate in chemistry from the California Institute of Technology in 1974. He was named an Alumni Fellow by Louisville in 1997. He and his wife, Kathleen Carothers Geoffroy, have four children (Susan, Janet, David, Michael).

Dr. Paula C. Morrow
Faculty Athletics Representative

Morrow is in her fourth year as Iowa State's faculty athletics representative. She attends Big 12 Conference and NCAA meetings, advises the president on athletics matters and helps maintain the academic integrity of the athletics program.

Morrow also certifies the eligibility of student-athletes, investigates reports of rules violations and works to promote the welfare of student-athletes.

Morrow, the Max S. Wortman Jr. and a university professor of management, teaches courses in organizational behavior and human resources. She has consulted for the Iowa Department of Transportation, Union Pacific Railroad and Pioneer Hi-Bred International (now DuPont).

The Maryland native earned her bachelor's degree from Maryland in 1973. Morrow received her master's degree from Virginia Tech in 1975 and her doctorate from Iowa State in 1978. She has worked at ISU her entire 28-year career. Paula and Miles Morrow have two adult children (John, Megan).

Athletics Director Jamie Pollard

Jamie Pollard, whose visionary and dynamic leadership style created an immediate buzz and tangible progress, is the Director of Athletics at Iowa State University. The 41-year-old Pollard has had an immediate impact on Cyclone Athletics.

In less than one calendar year, Pollard has energized an entire department and campus community with a relentless work ethic and the dare to dream big. The accomplishments under his watch include:

- the introduction of a $135 million facility master plan, which includes major renovations and enhancements to Hilton Coliseum and Jack Trice Stadium and visions for a Student Recreation Center (aquatic center and gymnastics practice facility) and a Gateway Athletics Complex (outdoor track, softball, baseball and indoor/outdoor tennis facilities);
- the promotion of Cael Sanderson, the greatest ambassador in college wrestling today, to head coach and the hiring of Greg McDermott, one of the nation's hottest coaching candidates to lead the men's basketball program;
- a classroom performance in 2005-06, which resulted in a higher grade-point average for student-athletes than the student body;
- Iowa State's first victory in the Cy-Hawk Series (all sports competition) for state bragging rights between the state's two largest schools;
- raising the operating budget by $4.9 million, aided by the signing of a seven-year multi-media rights deal with Learfield Communications;
- a Big 12 Championship (only the sixth for ISU in the 10-year history of the conference) and the first-ever berth in the Super Six for gymnastics;
- the creation of a comprehensive strategic vision for ISU Athletics called "Taking the Next Big Step";
- an end zone tickets sales promotion, which created 3,000 new season ticket holders in less than 30 days, and a school-record number of season football tickets sold;
- facility upgrades for Hilton Coliseum, which includes a new HD-quality scoreboard, a ring beam and new seats and sound system for 2006.

ISU athletics director Jamie Pollard welcomed new Cyclone men's basketball coach Greg McDermott to Ames in March.

Twelve years ago, Pollard's mentor (Maryland AD Debbie Yow) told him to list universities that would be on his wish list if he were given the opportunity to be a Director of Athletics. The list included schools with Midwestern values, strong academic reputations and highly competitive athletic conferences. When the ISU job opened, Pollard knew it was time to act. He pursued the position with vigor and outlined a vision for future success. The plan impressed the committee and he was named the school's 14th Director of Athletics on Sept. 19, 2005.

"Jamie Pollard is widely recognized for his management achievement and his creativity," President Gregory Geoffroy said in introducing him.

His arrival at Iowa State University was preceded by three years (2003-05) as the Deputy Athletics Director at the University of Wisconsin. Pollard handled the overall administration of the university's 23-sport, $72 million athletics department. He was the school's No. 2 athletics administrator under Barry Alvarez, who was serving in the dual role of director of athletics and head football coach.

Pollard joined the athletics department at Wisconsin in 1998 as its chief financial officer and senior associate athletics director. During his tenure, he served as sports administrator for men's and women's basketball for four seasons. The Badger men's teams won two consecutive Big Ten championships, one Big Ten Tournament championship and advanced to the 2005 NCAA Tournament Elite Eight.

A strategic financial plan that Pollard authored ("Keeping Big Red in the Black") helped Wisconsin Athletics climb out of debt and develop a $15 million reserve. He was chosen 2002 Business Manager of the Year by the Collegiate Athletic Business Managers Association (CABMA), an organization for which he served as president.

Athletics Director Jamie Pollard

Thomas, Jamie, Ellen, James, Annie and Maggie Pollard

In 2003, Pollard received a Street & Smith's Sports Business Journal's "Top Forty Under 40" award, which goes to the most influential and creative individuals in athletics under the age of 40. He was the first intercollegiate sports administrator honored by the magazine.

Under Pollard's leadership, a $110 million renovation of the football stadium was completed, football and basketball games were sold out and records were set for donations to the athletic department and the number of athletics donors.

Pollard also assisted with the development of Wisconsin's inaugural preferential seating program that generated more than $9 million annually. He helped negotiate a multi-year, multi-million dollar contract for media and marketing rights.

UW-Madison Chancellor John D. Wiley appointed Pollard to serve as campus chair of the Partners in Giving campaign, which benefited more than 300 non-profit organizations. The 2004 campaign set records for donors and donations.

Before his stint at Wisconsin, Pollard served as associate athletics director for internal operations at St. Louis University (1989-94) and associate athletics director for administration at the University of Maryland (1994-98). He assisted with balancing budgets and creating reserves while helping implement gender equity plans at both institutions.

Pollard founded Collegiate Financial Services, LLC, a private data research company that provided strategic financial planning and research services to athletic administrators, university presidents and conference commissioners.

Pollard received a bachelor's degree in business administration in 1987 from the University of Wisconsin-Oshkosh. That same year, he was the NCAA Division III national champion in the 5,000-meter run. A two-time All-American for the Titans, Pollard was inducted into the UW-Oshkosh athletics hall of fame in 1999.

He and his wife, Ellen, have four children (Thomas, Annie, Maggie and James).

*"Jamie Pollard is widely recognized for his management achievement and his creativity."

Athletics Administrative Senior Staff

Julie Bright
Senior Associate Athletics Director
Administration

Julie Bright, a nationally honored administrator with more than 30 years of experience at the University of Northern Iowa, was named Senior Associate Athletics Director for Administration in 2006. She serves as the department's Chief Financial Officer and oversees business services, human resources, equipment, sports camps and the athletics ticket office.

Bright's continual promotions at UNI moved her to the department's No. 2 administrative position. Bright supervised the business, ticket, marketing, compliance and media relations offices for the Panthers, and she had administrative responsibility for 18 Division I programs.

Her steady climb at Northern Iowa included stints as Associate A.D. for Business and Licensing (1998-2002), Athletic Business Manager (1985-98) and UNI-Dome Business Manager (1976-85) prior to her appointment as Senior Associate A.D. and Senior Woman Administrator.

Bright developed the department's plans for continued fiscal and operational support, was the administrative liaison for women's sports and negotiated numerous contracts for competitions, network broadcasts and facility usage. She had a key role in the planning and financing of the McLeod Center, coordinated post-season travel for several Panther teams and helped usher in women's soccer. She registered institutional and athletic trademarks, which continue to provide substantial royalties.

In her various capacities, Bright has served as President of the College Athletic Business Managers Association (2001-02) and the Association of College Licensing Administrators (1999-2000). She was presented a 2002 Staff Excellence Award by the Board of Regents, was Manager of the Year by CABMA in 2001 and earned a Gold Star Award from ACLA in 2001.

Bright earned a B.A. degree in business from the University of Northern Iowa in 1975. She and her husband (Dave) have two children (Ben, Krystal).

David Harris
Senior Associate Athletics Director
Student Services

David Harris, a former football player at the University of Mississippi who worked at both his alma mater and the University of Wisconsin, was named Senior Associate Athletics Director for Student Services in 2006. Harris will serve as the sports administrator for the Cyclone football program and oversee student-athlete services, compliance, athletic training, physical therapy and strength and conditioning.

He was promoted two times in five years at Wisconsin and had been a member of the athletics department's senior staff since 2004. Harris most recently served as Associate Athletics Director for Student Services, a role in which he was the department's chief academic officer. He also had oversight of the compliance office.

At UW-Madison, Harris improved the department's CHAMPS Life Skills program (which received a national "Program of Excellence" designation in 2005) and established the state of Wisconsin's first chapter of the Chi Alpha Sigma student-athlete honor society.

Under Harris' leadership as the Director of Academic Services in 2003, Wisconsin student-athletes achieved a school-record graduation rate (88 percent). That marked the first time in school history the athlete rate exceeded the overall student body's mark.

Prior to his tenure at Wisconsin, Harris held three positions at Mississippi from 1995-2002. He served as Regional Admissions Counselor / Coordinator of Minority Recruitment (1995-97), NCAA Certification Officer (1997-98) and Director of Academic Support (1998-2002).

Harris lettered three years in football at Ole Miss and was a member of squads which participated in the Liberty (1989 and 1992) and Gator (1991) Bowls. He was a three-time member of the Southeastern Conference (SEC) Honor Roll. Harris earned both B.B.A. (in 1993) and M.B.A. (in 1995) degrees from Mississippi.

Harris and his wife (Felicia) have a daughter (Kaitlyn).

Steve Malchow
Senior Associate Athletics Director
Communications

Steve Malchow joined the Iowa State athletics department in 2005 as Senior Associate Athletics Director for Communications after 16 years at the University of Wisconsin. Malchow is responsible for all communications initiatives for ISU's 18-sport program.

The native of Sioux City, Iowa, had worked closely with ISU Director of Athletics Jamie Pollard at Wisconsin since 1998. The duo created the UW's first strategic plan for athletics.

Malchow joined the Badgers' senior staff as Associate A.D. for Communications in 2003 after 11 years as Director of Men's Sports Information (1990-2001) and one season as Assistant Athletics Director (2002).

He was the football team's media contact for 11 years while directing the department's media relations initiatives. He was the chief strategist for Ron Dayne's Heisman Trophy-winning campaign in 1999, when he was named SID of the Year by the National Football Foundation. He was also media coordinator for the 2002 NCAA Men's Basketball Midwest Regional.

As Assistant Athletics Director, Malchow coordinated the merger of the UW men's and women's sports information offices, enhanced the Badger Web site, managed publications efforts and developed a comprehensive package of communications pieces.

Before his appointment at Wisconsin, Malchow worked as an assistant in the sports information office at the University of Iowa from 1985-89, where he was the contact for men's basketball and nine other Olympic sports.

Malchow, who is currently a member of the Executive Board for the Ames Convention and Visitors' Bureau, has bachelor's degrees in marketing (1984) and management information systems (1990) and a minor in journalism and mass communications from Iowa. He and his wife (Barb), the former SID at Illinois, have a son (Bryce).

Athletics Administrative Senior Staff

Frank Nogel
Senior Associate Athletics Director
External Relations

Frank Nogel, joined Iowa State University in 1999 and was named Senior Associate Athletics Director for External Relations in 2005.

He oversees a number of the department's revenue generating areas. His areas of supervision include development, marketing and promotions, licensing and special events. Nogel is the department's liaison with its multi-media rights holder (Cyclone Sports Properties), its radio and television partners and serves on the board of the ISU Letterwinner's Club and the Cyclone Gridiron Club.

Nogel helped complete the fundraising campaign for the $9.7 million Bergstrom Indoor Training Facility on the ISU campus. Before assuming his present position, Nogel was the department's Assistant Athletics Director for Major Gifts, where he was responsible for major gifts fundraising, capital campaign projects, endowments and gift planning.

Prior to joining ISU, Nogel spent five years with the Iowa Barnstormers of the Arena Football League. He was Director of Marketing and Operations (1994-97) before a promotion to vice president (1997-99). He was responsible for marketing, corporate sponsorship sales, promotions and game operations.

He also worked for the Greater Des Moines Grand Prix as Director of Operations and interim Executive Director. Additionally, he interned in Drake University's athletic marketing and promotions office.

The Des Moines native has been involved as a volunteer with the YMCA, Iowa Special Olympics, Iowa Games and the Ankeny Parks and Recreation Department. He currently serves on the Board of Directors for the Iowa Sports Foundation and is a member of the National Association of Athletic Development Directors.

Nogel earned his bachelor's degree in physical education from Iowa State. He and his wife, Cheryl, have two children (Ashley and Joseph).

Larry Quant
Operations

Larry Quant joined the Iowa State University athletics department as Associate Athletics Director for Business Operations in 2004 and was promoted to a Senior Associate Athletics Director post a year later.

In Quant's role as Senior Associate A.D. for Operations, he has direct oversight for facilities and capital projects, event management and the sports of men's basketball, wrestling and women's and men's golf.

Quant has also held oversight responsibilities of the business services unit, human resources, athletics ticket operations and equipment services during his Iowa State administrative tenure.

Prior to his appointment at Iowa State, Quant worked for 15 years in the athletics department at Tulane University. Hired as the business manager for the Green Wave, Quant was promoted to Assistant A.D. for Business in 1991 followed by an appointment as Associate Athletics

Director for Business and Finance in 1993. His work was recognized again in 1997 with his promotion to Associate A.D. for Internal Operations, a post in which he had oversight for the business office, weight room, training room, equipment operations and facilities.

The Alexandria, Va., native went to Tulane following four years as business manager and treasurer of the Virginia Episcopal School in Lynchburg, Va. At that institution, Quant handled business and administrative affairs for the school while also teaching math and coaching football and basketball.

Quant graduated from Colgate University in 1981 with a bachelor's degree in mathematical economics. He also played football and basketball for the Red Raiders as an undergraduate. He earned his master's degree (business administration) from the University of Virginia in 1985.

Larry and his wife, Cynthia, have three daughters (Caroline, Charlotte, Catherine).

Dr. Calli Theisen Sanders
Senior Associate Athletics Director
Sports Administration
Senior Woman Administrator

Dr. Calli Sanders, whose oversight responsibility for the Cyclone athletics department includes 13 sports, joined the staff in 2003. The Senior Associate Athletics Director for Sports Administration is the Senior Woman Administrator (SWA) and also liaison for the Athletics Council.

Sanders' distinguished athletics administrative career began at the University of Alabama-Birmingham, where she served in multiple roles from 1988-96. Sanders was the Blazers' SWA, Compliance Coordinator and Associate Sports Information Director before promotions to assistant and then associate athletics director. She was instrumental in helping UAB establish Division I-A football and women's soccer programs as well as creating the school's first compliance unit and academic advising program.

Sanders returned to her native state of Montana in 1997, serving as associate A.D. at Montana State until 2001. She supervised nine sports and four departmental units for MSU. She was then Associate Dean of Students at the University of Maine (2003) before coming to Ames.

Among her many assignments with national committees, she served on the NCAA Division I Women's Basketball Committee (1999-2001) and chaired the West Regional advisory and site selection committees. She directed several NCAA tournament rounds and assisted with operations of the 2000 and 2001 Final Fours. Sanders is a peer reviewer for the NCAA certification program and is on the editorial board of Athletic Management magazine. At the conference level, she has served on committees for television, legislation, ethical conduct and gender equity.

Sanders has an undergraduate degree in communications from Montana (1986), a master's in education from UAB (1990), and a doctorate in higher education administration from Montana State (2004). She also completed the Sports Management Institute's executive program in 2002.

Calli and her husband (Rick) have three children: Theisen, Jack, Molly.

Hy-Vee Cy-Hawk Series

Hy-Vee, Inc., serves as the title sponsor for the Cy-Hawk Series — the name given to the collection of regular-season, head-to-head intercollegiate athletic events featuring Iowa State University and University of Iowa teams. Iowa State won the 2005-06 series between the schools. Coca-Cola and Kraft have presenting sponsor status and work closely with Hy-Vee and the institutions to build greater awareness for all events in the Hy-Vee Cy-Hawk Series and generate excitement for fans of the institutions by “bringing to life” the Cy-Hawk Series inside Hy-Vee’s retail locations.

A point system tracks each institution’s performance, with one institution winning the annual trophy for the Hy-Vee Cy-Hawk Series. The two schools have split the opening two years of the series. In addition to the various points awarded for victories in head-to-head athletic competition, additional points are awarded for successful performance in the classroom by its student-athletes.

Telephone Trophy

When the field phones were tested prior to the Iowa State-Missouri game of 1959 in Ames it was found that both teams could hear each other. The problem was solved by game time, but not without considerable worry on the part of the coaches. The Northwestern Bell Telephone Co. of Ames had a trophy made and presented it to Iowa State to be awarded each year to the team winning the game. An odd sidelight to the whole affair was that the same thing happened to Missouri later that year in a game played at Columbia.

Cy-Hawk Trophy

When Iowa State and Iowa resumed football competition in 1977, the Des Moines Athletic Club donated a football trophy to be awarded to the victor of the annual game. Not only does the trophy feature a football player in the classic running back pose, but also likenesses of both Cy the Cardinal and Herky the Hawkeye also adorn the front of the trophy.

Senior Bowl Trophy

Iowa State head coach Dan McCarney initiated the Senior Bowl Trophy before the 1998 season finale against Kansas. If the Cyclones win their final home game of the season, the trophy is displayed in the Gary Thompson Hall of Honor throughout the next season, bearing the names of the team’s seniors.

“Cyclones”

In the summer and early fall of 1895, an unusually large number of what were then referred to as “cyclones” wreaked havoc upon the state of Iowa. Had the United States Weather Service known a little bit more about climatology at that time, Iowa State might today be known as the “Tornadoes.”

That fall, however, an underdog Iowa State 11 played at Northwestern. After building a commanding 30-0 halftime lead, the Cardinals, as ISU’s teams were then named, went on to post a shocking 36-0 rout of the Wildcats.

The game story headline in the next morning’s Chicago Tribune read “Struck by a Cyclone,” and since that famous moment in Iowa State gridiron history, ISU athletic teams have been known as the “Cyclones.”

Origin of “Cy”

In 1954, a group of students that included pep council president Chuck Duncan brainstormed on how to build more school spirit and approached Collegiate Manufacturing of Ames about creating a school mascot. Since the consensus was that one “couldn’t stuff a Cyclone,” a bird figure using the school colors (cardinal and gold) was the eventual choice. Duncan and the Pep Council then got the green light from ISU alumni director “Red” Barron, sports information director Harry Burrell and Cyclone Club director Ray Donels.

A cardinal-like bird was introduced at the 1954 Homecoming pep rally. A contest was held to determine the cardinal’s name. The entry “Cy” won. Cy is short for Cyclones, and the cardinal figure represents the school colors as well as the original Iowa State nickname.

Homecoming

Iowa State will celebrate Homecoming festivities this season the week of the Texas Tech game (Oct. 21). Included in the activities are carnivals, the annual “Yell-Like-Hell” competition, “ExCytement in the Streets” lawn displays, tailgate parties and reunions.

The idea of homecoming at Iowa State is credited to Professor S.W. Beyer, the then “patron saint” of the school’s athletics program. The first homecoming game took place in 1912 as the Cyclones entertained the University of Iowa.

According to C.F. Curtiss, then dean of agriculture, the purpose of homecoming at Iowa State was “to bring back hal- lowed members of the past to an event that will mean life and strength to the institution and promote reciprocal blessings, benefits and obligations that are never-ending.”

The inaugural homecoming celebration lasted two days and included a debate, receptions, pep rallies and colorful lawn decorations urging the gridders on to victory. Postgame activities were highlighted by a massive fireworks exhibition, which “lit up the sky for miles around.”

Through the years, numerous activities have been added to the fall extravaganza that in 1912 drew 152 registered alums. Today, homecoming attracts Cardinal and Gold alums from much of the country and is regarded as one of the nation’s premier collegiate celebrations.

Victory Bell

The bell was cast in 1890 by Clinton H. Meneely Bell Co. of Troy, N.Y. It has graced the ISU campus for more than a century. The bell was originally used to signal changes in class periods and student curfews. It was moved to Clyde Williams Field early in the 20th century, and then to Jack Trice Stadium. The bell’s ring today signifies an Iowa State victory.

Cannon

The cannon, operated by members of the Alpha Sigma Phi fraternity, is traditionally fired after every Cyclone touch- down or field goal. Additionally, it has been fired on kickoffs and was formerly fired during the Cyclone Marching Band’s playing of the “Star Spangled Banner.”

I-Ring

Iowa State senior football players receive a commemora- tive I-Ring after the season if they letter.

Who Was Jack Trice?

Jack Trice was born the son of Green and Anna Trice in 1902 in Hiram, Ohio. Trice attended East Tech High School in Cleveland, where he was a star athlete. When his football coach, Sam Willaman, was named head coach at Iowa State, Trice and six other athletes followed him west. Trice majored in animal husbandry and his goal was to settle in the South after his graduation and help the black farmers of that area. He was a very studious young man and despite his participation in intercollegiate athletics, Trice managed to pass 45 college credits with a 90 percent average. Because there were no athletic scholarships granted in those days, he worked odd jobs to finance his education and support his wife and mother.

On the gridiron, Trice was a stellar performer in the interior line. He played on the freshman team in 1922, and the following year was considered by many to be all-conference caliber. But the promising career abruptly ended. Trice played in the season-opener, a 14-6 win over Simpson on Sept. 29 in Ames. He traveled to Minneapolis the following weekend for an Oct. 6 showdown at Minnesota. Iowa State was playing a strong defensive game that day and trailed by only four points, 14-10, at the half. It was during intermission that Trice began to complain of a sore left shoulder, but nevertheless, returned to action in the second half. Midway through the third quarter, a frustrated Minnesota team ran a play off left tackle. Trice immediately saw that he wouldn't be able to reach the ball carrier, so he threw himself in front of the Minnesota interference in a roll block. He was toppled over on his back and trampled on.

Trice wanted to continue playing but never returned to the game. According to newspaper accounts, the crowd chanted, "We're sorry Ames, we're sorry." Doctors at a Minneapolis hospital allowed Trice to return to Ames with the team, which lost the game 20-17. They declared his condition not so serious. Trice rode back on a pullman coach. He rested his body on a straw mattress and was immediately taken to the university hospital upon his arrival in Ames. There, doctors discovered a broken collarbone Trice had sustained during the first half of the contest. His condition worsened as he developed respiratory problems Sunday afternoon, and a stomach specialist from Des Moines was summoned. Dr. Oliver Fay decided that surgery would be too risky, so no operation was performed.

At 3 p.m. on Monday, Oct. 8, 1923, Jack Trice died of hemorrhaged lungs and internal bleeding throughout the abdomen. The following Tuesday, classes were postponed and a funeral service was held before 4,000 students and faculty members on the central grounds of campus.

A letter written by Jack Trice to himself on the eve of the Minnesota game was found in his coat pocket the day of his funeral. The contents of that letter were divulged before the 4,000 mourners. It read:

"My thoughts just before the first real college game of my life: The honor of my race, family and self is at stake. Everyone is expecting me to do big things. I will. My whole body and soul are to be thrown recklessly about the field. Every time the ball is snapped, I will be trying to do more than my part. Fight low, with your eyes open and toward the play. Watch out for crossbucks and reverse end runs. Be on your toes every minute if you expect to make good. Jack"

A memorial scholarship was created, and a memorial to Trice is located in the Jacobson Athletic Building's Gary Thompson Hall of Honor. A statue in his honor was unveiled in 1984 and was moved to the east side of the Jacobson Athletic Building in 1997, greeting visitors entering Jack Trice Stadium.

"Iron Mike" Michalske

In the midst of the 1942 season, Iowa State head coach Ray Donels resigned after only three games. Following Donels' departure, line coach August M. "Iron Mike" Michalske assumed the head coaching duties of Iowa State's football program. In Michalske's first contest at the helm of the Cyclone program, ISC downed in-state rival Drake 29-6 (Oct. 17, 1942) in front of 6,081 fans at Clyde Williams Field in Ames.

Michalske acquired his nickname during his professional football days with the NFL's Green Bay Packers. Michalske was a standout offensive guard with the Packers from 1929-35, during the NFL's two-way era. He had such great stamina and durability on both the offensive and defensive lines that it earned him the nickname "Iron Mike."

Michalske, a Cleveland, Ohio, native, played collegiately at Penn State where he was a fullback. Following his graduation from Happy Valley, Michalske played with the New York Yankees football club prior to joining the Green Bay squad.

From 1936-37, "Iron Mike" was the line and backfield coach at Lafayette University before returning again to the Packers in 1937. He would play just one more season in Green Bay before becoming an assistant to legendary head coach E.L. Lambeau.

In 1964, the two-time All-Pro performer became the first guard ever inducted into the NFL Hall of Fame. Michalske, who played in 122 NFL contests, was named a member of the Green Bay Packer Hall of Fame in 1970.

During his time at Iowa State [1942-46], "Iron Mike" and the Cyclones went 18-18-3. In addition to his coaching duties at ISU, Michalske was also an associate professor of physical education who enjoyed handball as a personal hobby.

Michalske was known by his players as a great teacher and was respected as a great player. ISC quarterback Joe Noble recalled, "His offense was brand new, so he had to teach everybody what to do. Once a week, we would have a team meeting before practice. He would ask players questions. He would ask what would you do if this or that occurred. He quizzed almost every player. He was just preparing us. He laid out our game plan by asking us questions."

Michalske passed away on Oct. 26, 1983, in DePere, Wis., of natural causes.

Pete Taylor

Pete Taylor
Mentor. Co-Worker. Friend.

For 33 years, Pete Taylor's radio play-by-play voice defined Iowa State athletics. The highs, the lows, the triumphs, the defeats. Nearly all of us have a story about where we were and what we were doing as Pete called an unforgettable Cyclone moment. In the fields, in our cars, at home with the TV sound down and his voice turned up, we listened as he called it as he saw it.

Pete's contributions to Iowa State University went far beyond his play-by-play responsibilities. After 22 years as sports director at KCCI-TV in Des Moines, Pete joined the athletic department in 1990. His official title was associate athletics director for external affairs. His real title was mentor, co-worker and friend.

For 13 years, he was an anchor of steady influence in the athletic department. An experienced, credible Iowa State ambassador, he never flaunted his popularity and had a smile for all those who crossed his path.

In athletics, the public limelight showcases your achievements and exposes your shortcomings. It is this public experience that binds coaches, staff and student-athletes. Pete thrived in the limelight, but did so without fanfare. The respect he earned was affirmed by how staff, students and fans everywhere returned his loyalty with great affection. From Majors to Bruce, through Duncan and Criner, Walden and McCarney, he was the constant. John, Trickey, Nance, Orr, Floyd and Eustachy all were fortunate to call him friend. We all are better for having known Pete Taylor.

Our memories of how he touched us in so many ways will sustain his unique legacy and the echoes of his voice will resonate in our hearts for a lifetime.

An era that lasted more than three decades ended suddenly on March 5, 2003, when longtime ISU radio play-by-play announcer and associate athletic director Pete Taylor died following complications from a stroke. The veteran was in his 33rd season as the radio play-by-play "Voice of the Cyclones."

Taylor, 57, had teamed with former ISU basketball player Eric Heft on Cyclone radio broadcasts of football and men's basketball.

"Pete was my best friend," Heft said. "I was not alone. Pete was a great friend to so many people in so many walks of life. His loyal friendship was the kind that would last a lifetime."

Taylor was the State of Iowa's dean of play-by-play for Division I football and basketball. He was chosen Iowa Sportscaster of the Year four times during his career.

"To many, many people in our state and beyond, Pete was Cyclone athletics," ISU athletics director Bruce Van De Velde said. "His voice was the window through which people saw the games. Pete loved ISU unconditionally and that love was returned by coaches, student-athletes, fans and staff. It was one of the things that made the relationship special."

Taylor served as the department's liaison with men's basketball, football and special projects. Taylor also devoted time to Cyclone Club activities, including outings and banquets, and oversaw media relations and radio and television contracts.

More than 4,000 fans and friends gathered in Hilton Coliseum four days later to mourn Taylor's passing.

"We are all better people because we knew him," Iowa State head football coach Dan McCarney said. "Pete cultivated friends wherever he went. Miles never affected his friendships. To Pete, his friends were blessings."

Taylor started on a full-time basis with Iowa State as Director of Athletic Fundraising in 1990, but his association with Iowa State was in its fourth decade. In addition to his radio play-by-play duties, he also hosted the Dan McCarney TV Show, Cyclone Replay Show and football and men's basketball radio call-in shows. Taylor worked 22 years as the sports director at KCCI-TV in Des Moines prior to joining the Iowa State staff.

Ennis Haywood

Measure Haywood's legacy in smiles.

He was a key pillar in the foundation of an Iowa State football program that head coach Dan McCarney rebuilt from the ground up. His powerful straight-ahead running style allowed him to carve out his own mark in a Cyclone tradition long on great running backs. He was twice the first-team all-Big 12 running back in a conference that had a rich tradition of supplying NFL standouts. His numbers were big time. The fifth all-time career rushing leader in Iowa State history with 2,862 yards from 1998-2001, he led the Big 12 in rushing during ISU's 2000 Insight.com Bowl season, averaging 123.7 yards per game. His career average of 5.0 yards per carry was bettered in Iowa State history by only Heisman Trophy runner-up Troy Davis (5.6). For all his on-the-field accomplishments, Ennis Haywood will be remembered, first, for his big smile.

Haywood, who had parlayed his football career into a roster spot with the Cowboys in his hometown of Dallas, died May 11, 2003, at an Arlington, Texas, hospital. More than 1,500 people attended his funeral, a two-hour service at Inspired Body of Christ Church, including friends from Dallas-Carter High School, Iowa State and the Cowboys. His smile, it seems, left a lasting impression wherever he went.

"Ennis was like a son to my wife Trina and I," ISU running backs coach Tony Alford said. "He was the toughest player I have ever coached. Ennis always had a smile for you. He was a great kid and I was lucky to have known him. Coaches teach players but some players also teach coaches. I grew as a coach while I was able to teach him."

Haywood impressed McCarney immediately and the freshman saw action in all 11 games in 1998. His 56-yard run against Ball State was Iowa State's longest rush from scrimmage that season. But Haywood would have to earn his stripes. His first two years, he was an understudy to Darren Davis. The younger brother of Troy, Darren spun and dashed his way to 1,000-yard rushing seasons in 1997, 1998 and 1999. When Davis was injured for the 1999 season-opener against Indiana State, Haywood rushed for 172 yards on 24 carries as the Cyclones won 33-7. As a sophomore, he lost a fumble in a win over UNLV. He said he wouldn't let it happen again. He didn't. It was his only lost fumble in 572 career carries.

Haywood was asked in a press conference the week of the 2000 season-opener against Ohio if his straight-ahead style of running was all of his game. Haywood paused, smiled and said, "I've got a few shakes in the bag." The press loved it. There would be much more to smile about.

It was Ennis' time. He was now the man. In the season opener on Sept. 2 against Ohio in blazing heat and high humidity, Haywood sent a message, rushing for 159 yards in a 25-15 ISU victory. A huge factor in the Cyclones' first 4-0 start in 20 years, Haywood rushed for more than 100 yards in each victory, including a career high 241 yards on 39 carries with two TDs in a 31-17 win at Baylor. Haywood and his teammates went on to a 9-3 season that included the school's first-ever bowl victory, a 37-29 win over Pittsburgh in the Insight.com Bowl.

Iowa State was a different team in 2001, featuring mobile quarterback Seneca Wallace, who would earn Big 12 Offensive Newcomer of the Year honors. But Haywood was the perfect complement to Wallace's darts and dashes.

Haywood was a good blocker and could catch passes out of the backfield, with 60 career receptions for 548 yards. Haywood was one-of-eight semifinalists for the Doak Walker Award as the nation's top running back in 2001.

In the season's second game at Ohio, Ennis demonstrated why he was a priceless part of ISU's offensive attack. Iowa State clung to a 31-28 lead and had the ball on the Cyclone 33-yard line with 5:25 remaining. On the ensuing drive, Haywood carried the ball 10 times for 47 yards and three first downs as the Cyclones ran out the clock for victory. With 219 yards on 33 carries against the Bobcats, Ennis joined Troy and Darren Davis as the only Iowa State backs to record at least three career 200-yard games. Among his 12 career 100-yard games was a 125-yard effort on 20 carries against Alabama in the 2001 Independence Bowl. The Crimson Tide came into the game as the Southeastern Conference's toughest defense. Iowa State finished the season at 7-5 and played in its second-straight bowl game, in part because of Haywood's punishing style that made him one of the best third-and-short backs in the Big 12.

After leaving Iowa State, Haywood signed a free agent contract with the Dallas Cowboys. The Cowboys' leading rusher during the 2002 preseason, he earned a spot on the team's practice squad. It was all coming together for Haywood. Married to wife Kristal, he cherished his time with daughter, Enica, and the couple was expecting its second child just weeks after he passed away. He had wanted to provide in the best way possible for his mother Carol, who drove 12 hours from Dallas to Ames for Iowa State football games.

"Ennis was a phenomenal father, husband, son and football player," Dan McCarney said. "He was the heart of our turnaround in football."

Former ISU All-American center Ben Bruns summed it up.

"He enjoyed being around us and we enjoyed being around him," Bruns said. "He was just one of those people."

Dexter Green

It was easy for Cyclone fans to root for a player like Dexter Green. When hearing news of his death after losing a battle with cancer in May of 2003 at the age of 46, it sent shockwaves through the Iowa State community. Listed at 5-9, 170 pounds, people were amazed how the diminutive tailback even played big-time collegiate football. When Green graced the field of Jack Trice Stadium from 1975-78, there was not a better football conference in the nation than the Big Eight. And it was no coincidence that Iowa State's greatest three-year record in school history occurred when Green was its primary ballcarrier.

Known to his teammates and fans as "Money," Green became an icon to many Cyclone fans during his tenure at Iowa State. In his three seasons as a starter, the Cyclones went 24-11 and appeared in two bowl games, as the shifty back rambled for a then-school record 3,437 career yards. He led the Cyclones in rushing for three-straight seasons. Green scampered for 1,074, 1,240 and 991 yards, respectively, from 1976-78, falling just nine yards shy in his senior season of becoming just the second back in Big Eight history to rush for over 1,000 yards in three consecutive seasons. The Woodbridge, Va., native left school as the fourth-best rusher in Big Eight Conference history and his 34 career rushing touchdowns still rank second on the all-time ISU record charts. He earned first-team all-Big Eight honors as a junior (1977) and was a second-team pick, All-American and Heisman Trophy candidate during an injury-riddled senior season (1978).

The Cyclones showcased one of the nation's most potent offensive attacks in 1976 behind Green's brilliant running. ISU averaged 439.6 yards per game, leading the Big Eight and ranking second nationally (Michigan). Green racked up five 100-yard games that fall, including a career-high 214 yards vs. Missouri, making him one of only nine players in school history to rush for over 200 yards in a single game. Despite finishing the season at 8-3 and ranked in the AP Top 25 (No. 18), the Cyclones were shunned by the bowl scouts.

That letdown produced the fuel that fired Green's and ISU's engine in 1977. The Cyclones and Bruce finally got their elusive bowl bid, earning a Peach Bowl berth after another 8-3 regular season. Green started to gain national attention as a junior through his propensity to shine in the national spotlight. This was evident in ISU's 24-21 upset of No. 9 Nebraska in Lincoln, Neb., Oct. 15, 1977. Green rushed for a team high 139 yards and had a key 19-yard touchdown dash in the second quarter that evened the score at 14-14. Green's tough running was perfect for Bruce's ball control offense, as ISU topped Nebraska for the second consecutive season.

"He was at his best against the great teams," Bruce said. "I had many good backs over the years, but not all of them were at their best against the Nebraskas and Oklahomas like Dexter was. He was determined to be a success."

Further evidence of Bruce's statement revealed itself after the Nebraska win when Green rushed for 177 yards the following week at No. 6 Oklahoma. Green ended the 1977 season with seven 100-yard rushing efforts, including an ISU bowl record 172 yards vs. North Carolina State in the Peach Bowl.

Despite injuries, Green had an outstanding senior season, rushing for 991 yards and nine touchdowns, helping ISU to its second consecutive bowl game with a Hall of Fame Bowl invitation. He capped off his incredible career with 148 yards in a 28-12 loss to Texas A&M in the Hall of Fame Bowl. Green scored both of ISU's touchdowns.

When his career ended, Green also had these honors to fondly look back on: Hula and Japan Bowl invitations, National Back of the Week laurels twice (vs. Missouri in 1976 and vs. Oklahoma State in 1977), UPI National Backfield of the Week four times and adorning the cover of the 1978 NCAA Official Football Guide.

"Dexter was just an absolute quality guy," ISU teammate Tom Randall said. "Dexter was one of the good guys. He was first class. You just can't say enough nice things about him."

When his playing career ended, he entered the ministry. He later moved to Columbus, Ohio, where he was an assistant football coach at Linden-McKinley High School and a teacher of basic computer skills to underprivileged and undereducated adults and teenagers in the community. He was a minister for the Columbus Church of God and Christ and did motivational speaking for various community service programs.

Green was diagnosed with stomach cancer in 2001, which later spread to his colon. He spent the final two weeks of his life in hospice care, but his illness did not stop his positive viewpoint on life.

"His gift was in motivating other people, even during the months he was in the hospital," Green's aunt Farris Avery said. "When he was sick he spent his time walking up and down the hallway uplifting everyone else. It was a gift that he had, to make everybody else feel better."

A reporter once asked Green immediately after his stellar ISU playing career ended, "If you could do it all over, would you change anything?" Green answered humbly, "No, because if I did that, it would make it seem like something went wrong. I was raised to take things as they come. I don't like to go into the past, right now all I want to think about is the future. I have had a real great experience at Iowa State and I married my beautiful wife here - I can't ask for anything better."

Previous Football Facilities

State Field (1892-1913)

Football was first introduced to the Iowa State campus during the late 1870s. During this time period there was little time or interest for sports, and football and other games were looked upon as frivolous and distracting activities.

Through intramurals, football soon became the main competitive sport with games being played between the classes. The winner of the classes would then challenge outside schools to see who had the best team in Iowa.

As the competitiveness between schools grew, there became an apparent need for the development of an athletic field. A 12-acre plot of land just west of Morrill Hall was chosen, and $200 was set aside to develop ISU's first football field.

In 1892, Iowa State played its first recorded game on an area of land just west of the Campanile, where much of the Parks Library stands today. The game resulted in a 6-6 tie with State Center.

In 1900, the field was fenced in and wooden bleachers were installed. By Nov. 16, 1901, the ISC Student suggested that a name be given to the athletic field. The area was often called "State Field," although no official name was ever given to the field.

In 1904, four new seating sections were added to the existing structure. By 1905, portable bleachers allowed nearly 2,000 spectators to take in a Cyclone football game.

Over the years, State Field played host to some of the greatest moments in early Cyclone football history, including an 87-0 victory over Simpson College in 1904 that established the school single-game scoring record. ISU coaching legends Glenn S. "Pop" Warner, Albert N. "Shady" Ristine and Clyde Williams all coached there. Iowa State amassed a record of 52-12-4 at State Field from 1892-1913.

Clyde Williams Field (1914-1974)

A shortage of funds delayed development of a new athletic field. But in October of 1914, Iowa State President Raymond Pearson recommended that permission be given to erect a concrete bleacher on the west side of a field adjacent to the Pike Street line (now Sheldon St.), and about halfway between the State Gymnasium and Boone Street (now Lincoln Way). The cost was estimated at $35,000. The new facility, which would seat around 5,600 spectators, became known as "New State Field" or just "State Field." As early as Jan. 13, 1916, the Iowa State Student was editorially calling for the field and the gymnasium to be designated by more appropriate names.

The stadium grew with increasing interest in Cyclone football. In April 1925, the Iowa State athletic council approved construction of concrete bleachers on the east side of the stadium. The new addition was completed at an estimated cost of $75,000. It was dedicated on Oct. 10, 1925, before the Iowa State-Kansas game. The addition lifted the stadium's capacity to 14,500.

In 1938, State Field received a new name. The field was dedicated as "Clyde Williams Field" before the Iowa State-Kansas Homecoming game on Oct. 22. Williams was Iowa State's football coach from 1907-1912. He organized Iowa State's first basketball team and was Iowa State's athletic director from 1914-1919. The Shelby, Iowa, native was one of six men to sign the bank note for the original construction in 1914. Williams had held out for three years to construct the stadium on its eventual site, which was once a coveted prize orchard of the Horticultural Department. After Williams' death in 1938, the field was named in his honor.

Another series of additions, including enclosing the south end of the stadium, pushed the capacity to 36,000. A record crowd of 36,690 saw the Cyclones tie No. 3 Nebraska 23-23 on Nov. 11, 1972.

Cyclone Football Through The Years

Iowa State defeated Iowa in 1934 to start the season undefeated through four games.

Members of Iowa State's original varsity team.

After a career-ending injury in the 1998 season opener, senior center Marc Cortez wrote a letter to roommate and Iowa State fullback Joe Parmentier before the Cyclones' intrastate showdown at Iowa the following Saturday. Parmentier showed the letter to ISU head coach Dan McCarney, who read it to his Cyclone team before it took the field at Kinnick Stadium. After ISU's 27-9 victory over the Hawkeyes, the Cyclones dedicated the win to their teammate who had so inspired their play.

I came across a quote the other day by Michael Jordan. He said that the people who say it's just a game, those are the people he can't play with.

It isn't just a game. Just like the tee-shirt says, football is life. But every life comes to an end. My life ended before I was ready.

It hurts me now when people don't appreciate what they have. I realize now that God gave me a gift. The gift of football. You must cherish that gift, because it can be taken away at anytime. Enjoy every play, every series, every hit, every touchdown, because you never know which one will be your last.

I know this. I want nothing more (than) to be out there this Saturday on the field with you, to fight alongside you.

Just remember this: every snap you take, every time you hit someone, every yard you gain, every big block you make, I'll be there with you. I'll be in the huddle alongside you, fighting to bring a victory home!

*Cherish the gift God has given you,
Tezzy*

1895 Cyclone Levels Evanston

In 1894, a terrible tornado hit the Iowa town of Grinnell. During the summer and early fall of 1895, a number of “cyclones” continued to wreak havoc on the state of Iowa. Hence, when the Iowa State (then called Iowa Agricultural College) football team blew away highly touted Northwestern that fall, the winners were likened to a cyclone. The name stuck as this group of Cyclones helped propel Iowa State into the world of big-time football.

An organized group of athletes first represented Iowa State in 1892. In 1894, college president William M. Beardshear spearheaded the foundation of an athletic association to officially sanction Iowa State athletic teams. The 1894 team finished with a 6-1 mark, including a 16-8 victory in a bitter battle against what is now the University of Iowa.

A college football legend was the next catalyst in the growth of Iowa State’s fledgling program. Glenn S. “Pop” Warner, later to become famous as coach of the Carlisle Indians, University of Pittsburgh, Stanford, and Temple, and also as the inventor of the double wingback system of offense, came to coach the Ames team for the first time. Warner, just beginning a coaching career that would span 44 years and 313 victories (which still ranks on the all-time NCAA coaching list), came to coach the team in the late summer before heading to Georgia, where he had been named head coach. This arrangement was followed each year through the 1899 season. Before he left for his jobs in the east, Warner turned the 1895 reins over to Bert German, who was the team manager, one of the star backs and, during the regular season, a mentor. Warner’s preseason drilling soon paid big dividends.

Iowa State’s team opened the season with a game against the Silver Bowl Athletic Club of Butte, Mont. The Ames team traveled to Montana on a train that included a combination tourist sleeper and dinner car. The team had its own chef along. That luxury lost its glitter when the train became snowbound and ran out of food. The team had to subsist on raw berries purchased at a sold-out general store for the balance of the trip.

The game was even rougher. The Butte team, comprising mostly of former eastern collegiate stars and a few hardy mountaineers, scored two touchdowns in the game’s first 15 minutes. Warner, a gridiron standout himself at Cornell University, suited up for the second half. Iowa State closed the gap to 12-10. The game got rougher, and a third Ames touchdown was negated by the local official. He may have been intimidated by miners who were shooting their guns off amidst the crowd of more than 3,000. Iowa State’s players left the field in disgust.

Most observers didn’t expect Iowa State’s reception to be much better two weeks later when the Ames team traveled to highly-regarded Northwestern for that school’s home opener on Sept. 28. But the home team was in for a big shock. Iowa State rolled to a 36-0 victory. Right halfback Joe Meyers was the offensive star, making several long runs, including a 70-yard scoring jaunt. Iowa State led 30-0 at halftime. The final outcome was so decisive that the Chicago Tribune reported the next day that “Northwestern might as well have tried to play football with an Iowa cyclone as with the Iowa team it met yesterday.” The article’s headline read “Struck By A Cyclone.” The nickname stuck, and the Iowa State team had made a name for itself, literally.

The “Cyclones” left immediately for Madison, Wis., where they dropped a 12-6 contest against Wisconsin two days later. The fact that this team played every game on the road underscored its effort. IAC beat an athletic club in Sioux City, 26-4 on Oct. 12. Minnesota thrashed the Cyclones, 24-0, on Oct. 19 in Minneapolis, before the Iowa Staters shut out Iowa, 24-0, on Oct. 28 to end the season. German explained the Cyclones’ erratic play.

“I’m afraid some of us got a bit stuck up after that Northwestern game,” German would recall 50 years later. “Some of the boys didn’t train too well, either.”

But Warner, German and the rest of this 1895 team had put Iowa Agricultural College on the football map. As IAC grew into Iowa State College and then Iowa State University, its athletic teams carried the same moniker the 1895 unit had earned on that cold afternoon against Northwestern.

Williams Makes Mark With 1907 Squad

The 1907 Iowa State College team began fall practice in a state of transition. The 1906 squad had produced a 9-1 record that included seven shutouts. But most of that team did not return, so each of the 100 would-be Cyclones who showed up for tryouts was starting with a clean slate in the eyes of first-year head coach Clyde Williams.

Williams, a graduate of the State University of Iowa, was a three-year starter at quarterback for the Hawkeyes. A three-sport collegiate star, Williams graduated from the Iowa School of Dentistry in 1903. But he continued to coach in the high school ranks until taking a job as baseball and assistant football coach at Iowa State in 1906. A new conference rule required that coaches be hired as salaried members of the faculty rather than by the month or season and Iowa State responded by hiring Williams as football coach.

The Cyclones opened the season on Oct. 4 with an uninspiring 18-0 win over Coe. The game's competitive score put a damper on the hopes of Iowa State fans who knew the next opponent, Minnesota, would be a much tougher foe. Minnesota did win the Oct. 12 game, but not in the convincing fashion expected by both sides. Two drop-kick goals gave the Gophers an 8-0 win. Iowa State's stubborn effort was recognized by a Minneapolis newspaper that said, "(the game) shows either Minnesota is weak this year, or that the team from Iowa is stronger than usual."

Iowa State improved to 2-1 the next weekend with a 12-0 win at Morningside. Left end Phil Reppert scored two touchdowns as the Cyclones used the double-pass play to confuse their opponent.

Cornell was Iowa State's next foe, but in contrast to today's coaches, Williams wasn't really taking it game-by-game.

"I don't know what Cornell has got, but we should be able to beat them by three or four touchdowns," Williams said. "I'm worried about Nebraska and Iowa. We'll be lucky to get a split out of those two."

So it was no surprise when the Cyclones scored a 17-0 win in Ames on Oct. 26. The Des Moines Register and Leader saved most of the criticism for the referee by stating that "the game was marred by the ignorant decisions caused by the constant rag chewing of Referee Crop, an old Wisconsin man. He not only was ignorant of when to call fouls, but he did not know how many yards to penalize when he called them."

Williams' fears of Nebraska's prowess were well founded. On Nov. 2 in Lincoln, the Cornhuskers and Cyclones locked horns in what The Des Moines Register and Leader called "the fiercest, most thrilling football game ever waged on the Nebraska field."

The game came down to a disputed drop-kick field goal by Iowa State that bounced once before going over the goal post. The referee disallowed the play, which would have given the Cyclones a 13-10 victory. ISU protested what Nebraska called a 10-9 Cornhusker win. Iowa State appealed the next day to football coaching and rules guru Walter Camp. Camp stated that the goal should have been allowed. To this day, the contest is claimed a victory by Iowa Staters.

Iowa State got ready for the Iowa game with a 49-0 rout at Grinnell. Reppert scored three touchdowns and fullback Tom Willett also tallied three touchdowns. The state of Iowa now geared for the big showdown between Iowa and Iowa State.

The Cyclones' inconsistent performances had thrown a major scare into Iowa State backers. Only 150 fans showed up for the Thursday pep rally on the Ames campus. The Register and Leader reported that "unless a little 'pep' is turned loose before Saturday's game, the Ames bleachers will be like a funeral crowd."

A smallpox scare that week was negated by college-wide vaccinations that left a lot of sore arms on campus. The Iowa team, meanwhile, had its mind on the game. The Hawks were still smarting from the 2-0 upset suffered in Iowa City the year before. Everything pointed to an Iowa victory, but Williams had his team ready.

The game went to the wire and was controversial. Reppert slammed into Iowa quarterback Carol (Chick) Kirk after the Iowa player had signaled for a fair catch early in the game. Reppert was ejected from the game, despite his claims that he didn't see Kirk signal for a fair catch. Kirk did return to the game, and scored all of Iowa's points on drop kicks. Iowa State captain Ralph McElhinney scored on a 30-yard touchdown run. Iowa still led 8-7 before State's W.C. Johnson dashed for a 40-yard score when several of the Iowa players stood up and relaxed when a whistle was blown. Johnson bowled over one of two Iowa defenders still trying to stop him. Iowa State refused a holding penalty, and the score gave Iowa State a 12-8 lead. ISC went on to win the game 16-8, a major upset before a crowd of 5,000 at State Field.

The emotional win took the edge off of Iowa State's season finale effort on Thanksgiving Day against Drake in Des Moines. The Cyclones trailed 4-0 at halftime. McElhinney then raced 75 yards for a touchdown on the first play of the second half. The Cyclones held on for a 13-8 win in front of 3,000 fans to defend their state championship of Iowa and finish the season with a 7-1 record. Williams would coach the Iowa State football team until 1912. He became Iowa State's athletics director in 1914 and would oversee the building of a new football stadium that would later bear his name. But it was his first Iowa State team that initially brought attention to the man who would play such a major part in the history of Iowa State athletics.

Coach Clyde Williams

1915 State Champions of Iowa

Iowa State football had the campus, the town of Ames and the ISC alumni buzzing during the summer of 1915. Ten "A" men returned from the 1914 squad, and the Cyclones had a new coach, Charles Mayser. Cyclone fans had visions of beating the University of Iowa, which had won the last three games between the two schools.

The schedule opened with a Sept. 25 contest against Ellsworth. The Cyclones were expected to dominate, and they did. Junior Clarence Jones rushed for two touchdowns in a 31-0 rout played in a constant drizzle which put a damper on the play of both teams. With an Oct. 9 contest at Minnesota looming, the Cyclones scored a costly 27-0 victory over Simpson in Ames on Oct. 2.

Iowa State fullback Ed Uhl left the game with two dislocated ribs. The Cyclones would lose several players during the contest in a more unusual manner. State Field had been lined with lime for the Simpson game, but the constant rain combined with the lime to create a chemical reaction, causing the lime to burn the skin of any players who came into contact with the substance. Several Ames players suffered burns bad enough that they were out of action for two weeks.

The loss of several players meant that the Cyclones couldn't even put one scrimmage together before the game at Minnesota. Mayser was completely pessimistic going into the game.

"I do not expect us to score," Mayser said. "I think Minnesota could score 5-7 touchdowns on us."

Instead, the Cyclones put up a great battle, falling 9-6. The performance was encouraging, and Mayser had two weeks to get ready for the Missouri Valley Conference opener against Missouri.

The well-rested Cyclones triumphed on Oct. 16 with a 14-6 win at State Field before falling to eventual conference champion Nebraska, 21-0, on Oct. 23. The defeat left Iowa State at 3-2 with games remaining against Morningside, Iowa and Drake. A sweep would make the Cyclones champions of Iowa, and Mayser prepared his team to meet that goal.

Iowa State conquered its next objective, scoring a 7-0 win over Morningside in Ames on Oct. 30. Iowa was next, and the buildup for the game was the biggest ever. Iowa State traveled by train to Cedar Rapids to stay the night before the game. On Saturday, Nov. 13, the Cyclones rode a special interurban car to Iowa City, where more than 1,000 Iowa State students had come from Ames on a special train to greet them. A crowd of over 11,000 had gathered for the fourth homecoming game in the history of the University of Iowa. Iowa was a seven-point favorite as the two schools met for the 17th time on a beautiful afternoon.

Sophomore back Howard Aldrich follows his blockers in the 1915 Iowa State vs. Iowa showdown in Iowa City. More than 11,000 fans (including many in the trees and on the light poles in the background) watched as the Cyclones captured a 16-0 win.

The game was all Iowa State. ISC silenced its critics with a convincing 16-0 victory. The Cyclones, aided by six Iowa turnovers, outgained the Hawkeyes 267-216 to push their record to 5-2. Uhl, bad ribs and all, scored on a 2-yard run in the first quarter.

Sophomore quarterback "Dury" Moss, who would earn first-team all-Missouri Valley honors, added the second touchdown on a 50-yard punt return. A safety put the icing on a great victory that made Drake the final obstacle in the Cyclones' late-season charge.

Interest was high for the Cyclone-Bulldog match-up on Thanksgiving Day in Des Moines. Iowa State was considered the favorite. More than 3,000 fans packed Drake Stadium for the contest. Adults got in for one dollar, school children for 20 cents.

The spectators got their money's worth. Drake led 14-7 into the third quarter before Uhl scored his second touchdown, this time from one yard out, to tie the game. Uhl finished the game with 102 yards rushing. The Cyclones then scored twice in the game's final 10 minutes on touchdown passes from Moss to sophomore end John Evans to capture a 28-14 win and the Iowa state championship, as well as finish the season with a 6-2 record.

After the Drake win, Mayser stunned his team, telling the players practice would begin for the 1916 season on the following Monday. His enthusiasm was further stirred when he was told he could have an assistant coach and trainer on his staff for the next season. Left guard Harold McKinnley joined Moss as a first-team all-conference choice. Uhl made the second team along with sophomore left half-back Howard Aldrich and sophomore left tackle Lowell Reeve.

1938 Iowa State College Cyclones

Not much was expected from the 1938 Iowa State football squad. After all, the 1937 Cyclones were 3-6 under first-year coach “Smilin’” Jim Yeager. In fact, ISC had won only five Big Six Conference games in the previous six seasons. Yes, the Cyclones had Ed Bock, a six-foot, 202-pound guard whose skills were already well-known in the Midwest. Everett “Rabbit” Kischer was expected to have a good year as the ISC quarterback. But Yeager didn’t put his squad on the spot.

“We’re figuring on winning a game or two in the Big Six, and it might be any of the five,” Yeager said. “We should be stronger this year, but every other team in the league should be better also.”

There were auspicious signs of things to come. ISC had won its last two games of the 1937 season (over Marquette and Kansas State) and returned six-foot, 205-pound Gordon Reupke, a punishing back from Waterloo who had played a major role in both wins.

Iowa State entrained for the Sept. 23 season opener at Denver. Six of the Cyclones played the entire 60 minutes as Iowa State prevailed, 14-7. Hank Wilder, a speedy back from Illinois, led the Cyclones with 93 yards on 19 carries.

The following week, 8,000 fans watched as the Cyclones dispatched Luther, 32-7, in the home opener at Clyde Williams Field. ISC outgained the Norse 457-138. Cyclone fans were encouraged by the positive non-conference showing, but few expected the Cyclones to win at Nebraska the next weekend. The Cornhuskers were 31-1-3 in Big Six play since 1931. Iowa State hadn’t beaten NU since 1919.

But in Lincoln, Iowa State took a 2-0 lead after junior Paul Morin blocked a Cornhusker punt in the third quarter. Five minutes later, Kischer took a Reupke lateral and dashed 10 yards for a touchdown that gave ISC an 8-0 advantage. It wasn’t over. Nebraska scored to make it 8-7, and the Cornhuskers were frothing at the mouth in front of more than 28,000 NU fans. Nebraska coach Biff Jones threw waves of reserves at Yeager’s men, but as The Des Moines Register recorded, “Never did a team from Iowa fight for victory like the Cyclones did, and when it seemed they no longer could withstand the flow of Nebraska reserves, they kept right on fighting and got the sweet reward of the first Iowa State victory over the Cornhuskers in 19 years.” Now even Yeager was excited.

“We’ve waited 19 years for this victory,” he said. “I’m so excited I can hardly talk. I can’t say anything too good for Kischer and Bock. They were great — and Reupke — the whole gang.”

The Cyclones pulled out a 16-13 victory the next weekend at Missouri, despite being outgained 440-131. The campus was buzzing.

The football team held up its end of the bargain the following Saturday, scoring three first-half touchdowns in a 21-7 win over Kansas in front of 14,076 freezing spectators. The Cyclones were now 3-0 in the Big Six and had won seven straight. Only the 1931 ISC team had won more than two conference games since the league was organized.

The following week, the Cyclones scored a costly 7-0 victory at Marquette. Kischer hit Marty Boswell with a TD pass for the game’s only score. But Iowa State lost the services of Wilder, who left the game because of an injury in the first quarter. Wilder had gained 497 yards in the season’s first five games and would be lost for the season.

All-American Everett “Rabbit” Kischer was a key performer in Iowa State’s magical 1938 season.

Iowa State won its ninth-straight game the next weekend with a 14-0 victory over Drake and its star bruiser, Pug Manders. Reupke scored on a 10-yard run and rushed for a season-high 126 yards in front of 16,000 fans in Ames. The following week, on Nov. 12, the Cyclones came from behind to tie Kansas State by scoring on the game’s final play. The table was set for a Nov. 19 showdown in Ames against undefeated Oklahoma.

A record crowd of more than 21,000 fans packed Clyde Williams Field in a battle for the conference crown. Oklahoma prevailed 10-0, finishing the conference season having shut out every league opponent. But what a season it had been. Bock and Kischer were All-Americans, and several Cyclones earned all-conference recognition. Six Cyclones were drafted in the 1939 NFL draft.

1944 Cyclones Inches from Glory

Despite the fact that World War II was raging and Iowa State's enrollment had dropped to 2,346, of which only 637 were men, ISC enjoyed one of the finest seasons in Cyclone history.

The Cyclones opened the campaign with a 49-0 victory over Gustavus Adolphus. Meredith Warner scored three touchdowns and kicked seven extra points to lead ISC. Quarterback Gene Phelps tallied three touchdowns as Iowa State crushed Doane, 59-0, the next week. The Cyclones then shut out Kansas, 25-0, to up their record to 3-0.

The undefeated Cyclones travelled to Columbia to play Missouri. Late in the fourth quarter, the Cyclones found themselves trailing by a touchdown. The Cyclones managed a late rally to preserve their unbeaten season with a 21-21 tie.

"We were trailing 21-14 with only a few minutes remaining. As we got the ball at our own 20-yard line, we could hear the public address guy announce that there would be a victory celebration at the Student Union right after the game," Cyclone lineman Dick Cole reminisced. "I think it was Joe Noble, our quarterback, who said, 'It ain't over yet. Let's show 'em we can go right down the field.' That is just what we did. Merry Warner went the last 20 yards for the touchdown, and the game ended in a tie."

After the tie with Missouri and a win over Kansas State, ISC met up with powerhouse Oklahoma. The Cyclones' hopes for an unbeaten season were dashed in a heartbreaking 12-7 defeat by the Sooners, partly the result of a questionable call.

"We were trailing 12-7 when Dick Howard caught a short pass from Joe Noble on a fourth-down play. An Oklahoma guy hit Howard right at the goal line and the sideline flag," said Cole. "Referee Jack North, who was about on the 15-yard line, called him out of bounds on about the 2-inch line. The game films later showed he crossed the goal and, when hit, pushed the flag back upfield. What's so tragic about it is that we would have won the game right there with a 13-12 score."

The loss was tough on Cyclone coach Mike Michalske. Cole recollected, "After all the dust had settled and we had sat in our locker room and changed clothes, it was really quiet because everyone was so down. When we left, Michalske was standing by the flag on the goal line at the southwest corner of Clyde Williams Field. He just stood there, shaking his head. It really took a lot out of him."

In a letter written to Joe Noble in January of 1945, the loss still burdened Michalske. "I have played the Oklahoma game at least once or twice since you left, Joe, and I imagine you have too, so I don't want to open up an old wound. I still think we might have won the game, and most of the time I think we did win it. That decision could have been called either way and we all know it. After looking at the picture 30 or 40 times, I am sure that Howard made it over."

The Cyclones rebounded to beat Nebraska, 19-6, in Lincoln the following weekend. Iowa State capped the 6-1-1 season with a 9-0 shutout of previously unbeaten Drake. The 1944 team outscored its opponents, 203-39, and shut out five opponents.

Jack Fathauer was named to the second team of Bill Stern's Look Magazine All-America squad. Six other Cyclones were honored as all-Big Six selections.

1959 "Dirty Thirty"

One of Iowa State's most celebrated teams was head coach Clay Stapleton's 1959 squad. Injuries had reduced the team to just 30 men when the season opened against Drake on Sept. 19. Despite being few in numbers, Iowa State, led by team captain Dwight Nichols, rolled to a 41-0 victory over the Bulldogs at Clyde Williams Field.

Following the game, as the team — covered with mud from the rain-soaked win — entered the locker room area, trainer Warren Ariail greeted them:

"Here comes the Dirty Thirty!"

The tag was an instant hit. The jubilant team gave Ariail the game ball and went on to compile a 7-3 record during 1959. The colorful squad's success, despite the adversity from injuries, made it a national favorite.

Iowa State's "Dirty Thirty"

The Year of the "Dirty Thirty"

One of the great underdog teams in college football took the field for the Cyclones in 1959. Only 41 men reported for fall drills, and by the time classes began ISU's six-man coaching staff had just 30 players to use. With a rugged Big Eight Conference schedule ahead, many observers believed that the Cyclones would be fortunate to record a .500 season.

This was obviously not an ordinary team, though. It proceeded to win seven of its 10 games and had an opportunity prior to the season finale to represent the Big Eight Conference in the Orange Bowl. Its offensive firepower manifested itself in the running of All-American Dwight Nichols and fullback Tom Watkins, who would finish the season ranked second and third, respectively, in national rushing.

Watkins' breakaway speed and the passing and running of Nichols led ISU to a 41-0 victory over Drake in the season opener - the game in which the team was nicknamed by Ariail. The field was wet and muddy, but Watkins gained 137 yards on 23 attempts. Nichols rushed for 87 yards and passed for 93, including six completions to end Don Webb. The Cyclone defense was outstanding, allowing only six first downs and 100 yards in total offense.

On another wet field at Denver, the Cyclones rallied to post a 28-12 come-from-behind victory. Trailing 6-0 late in the first half, Nichols connected on a 17-yard pass to Bob Anderson and ISU went into the locker room leading 7-6.

In the second half, Nichols ran for two touchdowns and completed a 5-yard pass to Webb for another. As ISU left the Denver field, the players were chanting "Dirty Thirty, Dirty Thirty, Dirty Thirty." A sports writer heard it, researched the background, and then told the sports world about the "Dirty Thirty."

ISU returned home to face Big Eight contender Missouri and battled the Tigers to a scoreless first half. Wingback Mickey Fitzgerald confused Missouri all day, gaining 59 yards on four attempts from a fake punt formation. But the Tigers scored once in both the third and fourth quarters to claim a 14-0 win.

The weather in Vermillion, S.D., was nearly perfect, as was the ISU attack. The Cyclones gained 402 yards in total offense and held South Dakota to just 106, winning 41-6. Critics hailed the Dirty Thirty as "the best team that had ever played in Vermillion." Watkins scored three touchdowns and defensive back John Cooper intercepted two passes.

Iowa State's defense was in high gear the following week at Colorado, recording a 27-0 shutout. The Buffaloes' standout sophomore, Gale Weidner, was held to minus five yards rushing. The Dirty Thirty

A handful of players and coaches from the 1959 team went on to build successful careers in college athletics. Clay Stapleton later served as the Cyclones' athletics director. Thirty-four-year-old assistant coach Lou McCullough was Iowa State's athletics director from 1971-82 and served as commissioner of the Trans-America Conference. Sophomore John Cooper pursued a career in coaching, serving as head coach at Tulsa, Arizona State and Ohio State.

1959 "Dirty Thirty"

played so flawlessly against CU that the coaching staff would rank it as the team's best game of the season. This was second-year head coach Clay Stapleton's first conference victory, and his players carried him off the field.

Kansas State was the Cyclones' third shutout victim of the season, losing 26-0 in the 1959 homecoming game. This afternoon belonged to Nichols, who passed for two touchdowns, ran for another and set a total offense record for one game. ISU outgained the Wildcats 466 to 202, despite averaging just 179 pounds per man.

With an Orange Bowl berth still on the line, ISU traveled to Lawrence, Kan., for an important game with the Jayhawks. The contest took place with the Cyclones still groggy from a 2:30 a.m. arrival in Kansas City. Plane reservations had been cancelled, and the team traveled by bus. KU shut down ISU's potent offense and won the game, 7-0, on a fourth-quarter 15-yard touchdown run by Curt McClinton.

Despite the loss, Stapleton was so proud of his team he remarked: "How can you help but be proud of these kids? When off the field, I'd rather be coach of the Dirty Thirty than President of the United States."

Nebraska had ended Oklahoma's string of 75 consecutive conference games without a loss the week before it came to Ames. Nevertheless, ISU grabbed a 3-0 lead at halftime before Watkins broke the game open on the second-half kickoff with an 84-yard touchdown - the longest play of the season. ISU increased its lead over the Cornhuskers to 18-0 after three quarters before winning 18-6.

The Cyclones had one final tuneup before the showdown with Oklahoma. Iowa State recorded one of its largest margins of victory ever with a 55-0 win over San Jose State. Nichols accounted for 149 yards in total offense, and the Cyclone defense intercepted four passes. The win gave ISU a 7-2 mark, the best record in the Big Eight.

A victory in the season's finale at Oklahoma meant a tie for the league title and the school's first-ever Orange Bowl berth. Many ISU fans were among the 47,000 spectators that day in Norman, Okla. The Sooners jumped to a 21-0 halftime lead behind the running of fullback Prentice Gault. Gault, who later would become associate commissioner of the Big 12 Conference, gained 110 yards on 14 carries. ISU closed the gap to 21-12 after three quarters, but Gault ran for two touchdowns, his last a 48-yarder, in the fourth quarter to secure a 35-12 OU victory.

Although the Cyclones were denied an Orange Bowl bid, the national acclaim secured the squad a place among ISU's greatest teams.

Nichols was named all-conference, All-American, and academic all-conference, along with end Jon Spelman. Watkins and Webb were also named all-conference.

All-American Dwight Nichols

1976 Cyclones Among Best Ever

Iowa State head coach Earle Bruce was entering his fourth season at the helm in 1976. Twelve of his 22 front-liners were seniors, but seven other key players were sophomores, including Mike Stensrud, Terry Rubley, Dexter Green, Jeff Curry, Ray Hardee and Tom Boskey. That combination of seasoned veterans and talented underclassmen provided the nucleus for what was unquestionably the finest team, statistically, in Iowa State history. However, despite the team's 8-3 record, a final No. 18 ranking in The Associated Press poll, and its awesome offensive output, it was shunned by the bowl selection committees and sat at home during the holidays.

Bruce was selected Big Eight Conference Coach of the Year and four of his players earned first-team all-conference honors, including split end Luther Blue, who was also an All-American selection. ISU's potent I-formation attack led the Big Eight Conference in total offense and finished second nationally, establishing an ISU record with a 439.6 yards per game average.

The Cyclones recorded their second eight-win season of the decade and broke the following team records: points scored, 369; touchdowns scored, 49; rushing touchdowns, 27; passing touchdowns, 20; first downs, 261; rushing yardage, 2,970; total offense, 4,836.

ISU rolled over each of its four non-conference opponents, defeating Drake (58-14), Kent State (47-7), Utah (44-14) and Air Force (41-6). The Cyclones recorded a 4-3 mark in Big Eight play with victories over Kansas (31-17), Kansas State (45-14), at Missouri (21-17) and their first victory over Nebraska since 1960, a 37-28 triumph.

Iowa State was ranked among the nation's top 20 by The Associated Press twice during 1976, only to suffer defeat the following Saturdays. ISU was ranked 16th nationally following its victory at Missouri but lost, 33-14, at Orange Bowl-bound Colorado five days later. On Nov. 14, the Cyclones were rewarded for their win over Nebraska with a No. 14 national ranking, but ISU lost 42-21 to Tangerine Bowl-bound Oklahoma State that weekend in the season finale. A victory over the Cowboys could have tied ISU for the Big Eight title and possibly earned it a berth in the 1976 Bluebonnet Bowl. With four other Big Eight teams already slated for bowl competition, one of the most accomplished Cyclone teams ever was not selected.

Several players received post-season accolades. Safety Tony Hawkins, offensive guard Dave Greenwood and defensive lineman Maynard Stensrud joined Blue on the all-conference team. Stensrud and "little" brother Mike (6-4, 270) were considered strong candidates to be the best brother combination that season in college football. Defensive tackle Tom Randall and barefoot, left-footed soccer-style kicker Scott Kollman were selected academic all-Big Eight. Kollman's 42 extra points ranked as an ISU record for years.

Green, a sophomore tailback, recorded the first of two consecutive 1,000-yard seasons, gaining 1,074 yards on 208 attempts. Junior Buddy Hardeman and senior Wayne Stanley shared the quarterback duties, combining for 1,771 yards and 19 touchdowns. Punter Rick Blabolil's 42.8 yards per kick average ranks fourth on the ISU charts.

Despite the disappointing conclusion, the accomplishments during the 1976 season turned the corner for Bruce's program at ISU and paved the way for two consecutive bowl berths and a host of all-conference and All-America players.

The Iowa State - Iowa Series

To most native Iowans, the annual Iowa State-Iowa football game is the state's marquee event. The fanfare, excitement and anticipation surrounding the event gives Cyclone and Hawkeye fans watercooler talk for months prior to and after the big game. What is hard to believe is that before 1977, Iowans were deprived of this grand event. Bad blood and constant feuding kept the schools from agreeing to a football contract from 1935-76. For 42 years the spirited rivalry was dormant.

The series began in 1894 with ISU winning 16-8. The first case of civil war was in 1897, when ISU's Foster Parker ran 40 yards for a touchdown in the second half. The Iowa coaching staff protested, claiming that the Cyclones committed a flagrant foul on the play, but no flag was thrown. Upset, the Iowa squad forfeited the game. The two teams did not play the next year, but resumed the series in 1899. It was contested annually except for three seasons until 1920. A key person in keeping the series together was Clyde Williams, ISU's football coach from 1907-12 and athletics director from 1907-19. A former All-American at Iowa, his voice of reason subsided many of the harsh ill feelings that existed between the two schools.

Tensions were not entirely absent from 1897-1920. Both teams reported illegal players had played in games against each other. The Hawkeyes uncovered that the Cyclones' Thomas Willett, who played four years with ISU, had competed two years at Grinnell. ISU then found out that a W.P. Knowlton had played four years for Upper Iowa before competing for Iowa. In 1907, Iowa head coach Mark Catlin said he received an anonymous phone call describing how Iowa star halfback Chick Kirk would be taken out of the game. In the Iowa State 20-14 victory, Kirk was tackled and injured while signaling for a fair catch.

After Williams left his athletics director post in 1919, Charles Mayer took over running the ISU athletics department. Mayer, who started the Iowa State wrestling program, was a tough-nosed Yale alumnus. Mayer and Iowa athletics director Howard Jones, another stubborn Yale alum, quickly got into an argument over whether Iowa State could use pitcher Ed Plagge in the baseball game between the two schools. Plagge used the spitball, which was a legal pitch in the Missouri Valley Conference, the league ISU was affiliated with. However, the spitball was prohibited in the Big Ten, the Hawkeyes' conference. Longtime Iowa State administrator Merl Ross told The Des Moines Register in 1977 about a phone conversation with Mayer and Jones.

"I've never heard such shouting and arguing over the phone," Ross said. "They were completely at odds over whether Iowa State could use Plagge. That's the first time I heard athletic officials of the schools talk to one another about breaking off athletic relations. I know that conversation did not help."

A survey was commissioned in 1916 under the direction of the U.S. Commissioner of Education and was presented to the State Board of Education. It reported: "The annual football game between the college and the university is the occasion for the revival of feuds, charges and countercharges, the reassertion of differences and criticisms, which, at best, have had only poor reasons for existence." This played an important role in halting the series for 13 years (1921-33).

When the series resumed in 1933, the highly favored Hawkeyes easily handled the Cyclones 27-7 in Iowa City. The same was expected the next season. The Cyclones were once again enormous underdogs. But ISU reversed the fortune, coming up with one of the greatest upsets in the series with a 31-6 domination of the Hawkeyes. The Cyclones held Iowa All-American Ozzie Simmons in check and were led by unlikely hero Tommy Neal. Neal, a sophomore from Sioux City, ran for 52 yards and dashed for three touchdowns to help clinch the Cyclone victory. Neal later recalled the events of that day to The Des Moines Register in 1977.

"George Veenker, our coach, was a master psychologist and really got us fired up for the Iowa game by bringing up some of the things Ossie Solem (Iowa's coach) had said," Neal said. "It had been in the newspapers that Solem couldn't find a place on Iowa's schedule for Iowa State. He implied that we were some kind of cow college, and he said he wanted to play some schools from the east instead of us."

Solem wasn't the only one who shortchanged the Cyclones. The Des Moines Register had already designed its Sunday sports section with a photo of Simmons on the front page in anticipation of the Hawkeye rout. When information of a possible Iowa State upset began to arrive by Western Union, the staff scrambled to change the Simmons photo with a Neal picture. The Register staff found an archive photo of Neal in his high school playing days and changed the design in the nick of time.

After the 1934 game, Iowa showed no interest in continuing the series. Veenker sent letters to Solem requesting another contract. They went unanswered. Veenker personally asked Solem for a series contract when he saw him at the 1935 Drake Relays. Solem said he would get back with him in a couple of weeks. He never did.

In 1949, formal renegotiations actually began, but Iowa continued its stance of non-renewal and halted all inquiries from Iowa State and the State Legislature. Iowa used the 1920 resolution, upgrading it periodically to justify keeping it dormant. In 1965, the resolution read like this:

"The (University of Iowa) Board in Control of Athletics wishes to state again its belief that any activity, athletic or otherwise, which places the universities, their students, alumni, faculties or other friends in opposition to one another should be discouraged as not in the best academic interests of the institutions or the State of Iowa. The policy was originally adopted by the Board in Control of Athletics in 1920, and it was reaffirmed in 1935 after being abandoned in 1933-34. It was adopted again in 1960, and reaffirmed in May of 1964."

Everything changed in 1968, when Iowa athletics director and former grid coach Forrest Evashevski and Iowa State athletics director and former football coach Clay Stapleton agreed to a two-year contract starting in 1977. Iowa's athletic board agreed to the two-year deal, but was unaware that Evashevski committed the Hawkeyes for four more games. When Evashevski resigned in 1970, new Iowa athletics director Bump Elliott had an unsigned contract for the six-game series renewal on his desk. Since the Iowa athletic board never approved the final four games of the Evashevski deal, Iowa stated the series contract would only include two games. Iowa State officials were upset with this decision, addressing the situation with the Iowa State Board of Regents. An arbitrator was hired, and he ruled that Iowa was obligated to play the six-game series. The contract to renew the series was officially signed on Sept. 9, 1971, by Elliott and ISU athletics director Lou McCullough.

In 1977, the hype and excitement regarding the game was astronomical. The game was shown live on national television, and Sports Illustrated wrote a feature story about the series revival. Fans were primed and ready to show their respective school pride after hibernating for 42 years. As it turned out, the buildup of the game was more exciting than the contest itself. Defense was the key, as the heavily favored Cyclones could not generate any offense, falling to Iowa 12-10 in Iowa City. There were just 14 first downs in the entire game. Iowa State had eight and Iowa had six, including only one in the second half. But Iowa made the big plays and took advantage of three Cyclone turnovers.

Both sides saw the great exposure the game gave the State of Iowa and how well-received it was among Cyclone and Hawkeye fans. It is now an annual tradition and will likely remain the top sporting event in the state of Iowa for years to come.

A State Field record crowd of 16,576 watched Iowa State whip Iowa 31-6 in 1934. The two teams didn't meet again until 1977.

Miraculous Marv Stuns Huskers

Nov. 14, 1992

Iowa State 19, No. 7 Nebraska 10

When the score of this game was flashed around the country on college football postgame shows, the general feeling was that this had to be a mistake. How could the mighty Nebraska football team, the Big Red Machine in all of its glory, lose to Iowa State? When considering all of the circumstances surrounding the game, how could you think otherwise? The Huskers brought in a 7-1 record and a No. 7 national ranking when it arrived in Ames for the game on a crisp November afternoon. NU was one of the hottest teams in the country. In back-to-back games before Iowa State, the Huskers trounced No. 8 Colorado 52-7 and No. 13 Kansas 49-7. Featuring the explosive tailback combination of Derek Brown and Calvin Jones and the exploits of freshman quarterback Tommie Frazier, the Huskers outrushed the Buffaloes and Jayhawks 724-136 combined. Nebraska was just as powerful on the defensive side of the ball, allowing just 208 yards of total offense in its last two games. All of this added up to former Nebraska coach and athletics director Bob Devaney proclaiming that the 1992 Cornhuskers were better than the 1971 Nebraska team that won the national championship.

Iowa State, at kickoff, was on the opposite end of the spectrum. The Cyclones, owning a 3-6 mark, fell at Kansas State (22-13) the week before and were going through a quarterback carousel. Bobby Utter started the first seven games of the season until suffering his second concussion at the Oklahoma State game, which ended his season. Marv Seiler, a seldom-used fifth-year senior, and Donnie Smith, a first-year junior college transfer, split quarterback duties in the next two games.

In the week leading up to the Nebraska game, ISU head coach Jim Walden selected Seiler as the starter. It was the final home game of the season for the Cyclones and Seiler, so it was fitting that the senior would get the starting nod. Seiler was a 5-11, 190-pound native of Joliet, Ill., who had only seen action as a reserve in 14 games in his Cyclone career prior to the Nebraska start. Not blessed with speed, quickness or an overpowering arm, Seiler kept himself in the mix thanks to his correct reads and decisions in ISU's triple-option offense. He had confidence in the schemes, earning team MVP honors and all-conference kudos at Joliet Township West running the triple-offense.

"He had a great handle on his limitations as a quarterback," Walden said. "But the one thing Marv had going for him was that he was a great decision-maker. He couldn't pass, but we didn't want to pass. I don't think we'd have won with anybody else that day."

Iowa State put the first points on the board with a Ty Stewart field goal at 9:46 in the first quarter. He ended up drilling three more field goals in the first half to give ISU an improbable 12-10 lead at intermission. It was especially sweet for Stewart, a native of Omaha, Neb., who grew up dreaming of playing for the Huskers.

With the Cyclones clinging to a two-point lead at the half, it became evident that this ISU team was gaining momentum and confidence by the minute. ISU's defense was nothing short of phenomenal to that point, halting the vaunted Cornhusker attack to 165 yards at the half. The second half was no different as ISU controlled the clock and forced NU into three-and-outs and poor field position. The Cyclones forced Nebraska into four three-and-outs in its seven possessions of the second half, mustering only five first downs and 81 second-half yards. The spirited Cyclone defense, led by linebacker Malcolm Goodwin with 11 tackles, stymied the Cornhusker rushing attack to a measly 42 yards on 21 carries in the second half. NU finished the game with a grand total of 246 yards of total offense, 192 yards fewer than its season average (438).

"They shut us down on all circuits," NU quarterback Tommie Frazier said. "They took our option away, they took our inside running away, and they took our passing game away."

While the Iowa State defense was holding strong, the Cyclone offense continued to amaze. The Seiler-led Cyclones methodically pieced together time-consuming possessions that controlled the clock and field position. Iowa State led 12-10 after a scoreless third quarter until the “run heard around the world” happened. Husker punter Mike Stigge boomed a punt 61 yards that went into the end zone for a touchback, giving ISU a first and 10 at its own 20-yard line in its second possession of the fourth quarter (11:08 remaining). On the first play, Seiler optioned right, then cut up field and found himself wide open in the Nebraska secondary. He scampered 78 yards to the Nebraska 2-yard line before getting run down with his hands clutching the ball. ISU scored on the next play with Chris Ulrich going over the top to push the Cyclone lead to 19-10.

Miraculous Marv Stuns Huskers

“When I broke the run, I kept wondering why somebody was not catching me,” Seiler said. “I knew Nebraska had players faster than me, but I like to think I had game speed. I run a lot faster when people are chasing me.”

Despite a 19-10 lead, ISU still had plenty of business to take care of before sealing one of college football’s greatest upsets in the 1990s. ISU’s defense stopped NU on its last two possessions, and Seiler’s leadership kept the ball away from the dangerous Nebraska offense. On its last possession, Iowa State took control of the ball with 5:14 left in the game. The Cyclones converted on a third-and-three, a third-and-six and a fourth-and-five while chewing up the remainder of the clock and securing the most improbable of upsets, a 19-10 win over No. 7 Nebraska.

The loss was Nebraska’s only conference setback in its 1992 Big Eight championship season. The Huskers were the national leader in rushing yards per game (328) in 1992, but were held to just 192 while ISU racked up 373 yards on the ground. Sports Illustrated awarded Seiler its player of the week award and called ISU’s win “the upset of the season.”

“Our goal entering the game was that we wanted Nebraska to play us,” Seiler said. “We had our pride, and we wanted them to realize they were in a game. You always dream about something like this, but this was almost an unbelievable story. I am just glad it happened to me.”

ISU quarterback Dean Carlson finished the 1971 season with 1,671 passing yards, a figure that was the Cyclone school record before George Amundson broke it the following season. Carlson ranks 10th on the all-time Cyclone career passing chart with 3,028 yards. His 24 career TD passes rank fifth all-time.

Fourth-year Iowa State head coach Johnny Majors and his Cyclone football squad set out on a mission in 1971 - to win more games than any Cyclone team, finish in the top half of the Big Eight Conference and make the school's first bowl appearance. It was audacious to say the least. But at the conclusion of the regular season, the Cyclones would add one more goal, win a bowl game. The 1971 squad, which was picked to finish last in the Big Eight, was one of the most successful teams in Iowa State history. ISU won eight games while losing four contests.

Coming off a 5-6 season in 1970, Iowa State hopes were high. But playing Nebraska, Oklahoma and Colorado; teams that would finish the season ranking first, second and third nationally on The Associated Press final poll, meant an upper-division conference finish would not come easy.

The Cyclones started the season right Sept. 18, beating Idaho, 24-7 in Ames. Iowa State dominated New Mexico, 44-20 the following Saturday in Albuquerque, N.M. Place-kicker Reggie Shoemake moved ISU's record to 3-0 with a game winning 39-yard field goal with 1:14 remaining for a 17-14 Cyclone victory at Kent State Oct. 2.

Majors and his team would now face Big Eight Conference competition, in what many still consider the league's strongest season. ISU's first Big Eight opponent was No. 5-ranked Colorado. The Buffs had beaten the Clones 61-10 the previous season. Despite what Majors called a "brilliant performance," ISU came up short, falling 24-14 in Ames, Oct. 9.

ISU improved to 4-1 the following Saturday at Kansas State behind a great defensive showing and an excellent performance by Cyclone starting quarterback Dean Carlson. Carlson tallied 18 completions for 235 yards in ISU's 24-0 win. It was a costly victory. The Cyclones would be without 12 players who were injured against the Wildcats for Iowa State's crucial showdown with Kansas on Oct. 23 in Ames. Nevertheless, the Clones dominated KU on the ground, coming away with a 40-24 victory that boosted their record to 5-1. George Amundson was the catalyst, rushing for 199 yards and three touchdowns. Amundson was listed as the No. 1 quarterback coming into the season, but volunteered to move to running back after injuries thinned depth in the backfield. Majors later would call Amundson "the finest athlete I have coached in any job I have had." Amundson started at quarterback for the Cyclones in the 1972 season and later went on to play in the NFL.

ISU, now 2-1 in conference play, would face two of the all-time greatest college football teams over the next two weeks. First up were the No. 2-ranked Oklahoma Sooners, who had drubbed Kansas State, 75-28, the previous week. The Cyclones fell behind early on Oct. 30 in Norman, Okla., as the Sooners tallied the game's first 17 points en route to a 43-12 win.

1971 Sun Bowl

The challenge would be even tougher the following week at No. 1 Nebraska. ISU was unable to get things going offensively, but trailed only 10-0 midway through the second quarter. Husker Johnny Rodgers broke the game open, returning a punt 62 yards for a touchdown shortly before half-time as Nebraska went on to a 37-0 win.

Needing a win to get back in the bowl game hunt, ISU rebounded from the two losses with a huge victory against Missouri Nov. 13 in Ames. Once again ISU was led by Amundson, who rushed for 140 yards and three touchdowns and threw for another score against the Tigers. Amundson's rushing performance against Missouri brought his season total to 1,003 yards, making him the first Cyclone to break the 1,000-yard rushing barrier.

The Cyclones headed into their Nov. 20 Big Eight finale against Oklahoma State in Ames with a 6-3 record. Due to final exams, ISU's first teams didn't have a chance to practice together all week. It didn't matter. Iowa State laid any doubts to rest by scoring on a 49-yard TD pass from Carlson to Ike Harris on Iowa State's first offensive play of the day. One touchdown was all that was needed as the Cyclone defense held the Cowboys scoreless. The final 54-0 score was Iowa State's largest victory ever over a conference opponent. Amundson once again had a huge day, running for 146 yards and four touchdowns while throwing a TD pass. Fresh from being carried off the field, Majors accepted ISU's first-ever bowl invitation by agreeing to play Louisiana State in the Sun Bowl in El Paso, Texas.

The Cyclone offense came on strong the following weekend, winning at San Diego State 49-31, compiling 556 total yards. Tight end Keith Krepfle hauled in seven receptions for 143 yards and two touchdowns.

Iowa State's 1971 Sun Bowl five-down goal-line stand against LSU was a highlight of the Cyclones' first postseason appearance.

Iowa State played in its first bowl game Dec. 18 in El Paso, Texas, before a sellout Sun Bowl crowd and national TV audience. ISU came in as the underdog facing 14th-ranked Louisiana State. LSU shut down the Cyclone offense, holding Amundson to just 56 yards. Led by linebacker Matt Blair, the Iowa State defense stood firm against the Tigers, including a first-half, five-down goal-line stand. The Cyclones kept it close for the majority of the game, but LSU quarterback Bert Jones was a thorn in ISU's side, completing 12-of-18 passes for 227 yards and three touchdowns. At one point in the fourth quarter, ISU came within four points of the Tigers, but Jones drove LSU down the field and the Tigers came away with a 33-15 victory.

Despite the loss, it had been a record-breaking season for Majors and his surprising Cyclones. Amundson rushed for a school-record 1,260 yards and a school-record 15 touchdowns. Krepfle made 40 receptions for 570 yards and seven TDs. Carlson threw for a school-record 1,867 yards. Linebacker Keith Schroeder earned first-team all-Big Eight honors. Majors and his team had broken new ground in 1971, coaching the Cyclones to a fourth-place finish in the Big Eight Conference's premier season.

Iowa State players carried head coach Johnny Majors off the field following their win over Oklahoma State. The 54-0 victory clinched the Cyclones' Sun Bowl berth, the school's first-ever postseason bid.

George Amundson passed for 153 yards and rushed for 78 in Iowa State's 1972 Liberty Bowl appearance. His 2,387 yards of total offense that season ranks sixth on the all-time ISU single-season list.

On the heels of Iowa State's first-ever bowl appearance and an 8-4 record the previous season, the 1972 squad had a tough act to follow. The biggest concern for fifth-year head coach Johnny Majors was a possible drop in offensive production. Gone were five starters, mostly from the offensive line. George Amundson was moving back to his natural position, quarterback, leaving a tailback vacancy. Wide receivers Ike Harris, Willie Jones and tight end Keith Krepfle were back. The trio caught 81 passes for 1,379 yards and 14 TDs the year before. The defense would be led by co-captain and pre-season All-American linebacker Matt Blair.

Heading into the season opener at Colorado State Sept. 16, Iowa State was already suffering through two major setbacks. Blair injured his knee and would be forced to take a medical redshirt. Krepfle chipped a vertebrae and would miss two games. Nevertheless, ISU rolled over the Rams 41-0. Any doubts about offensive production had been laid to rest as the Cyclones piled up 528 total yards. The Blair-less defense held CSU to only 214 total yards. Amundson led the offensive surge, throwing for three touchdowns and running for another. Tailback Mike Strachan ran for 143 yards on 17 carries.

Next up for Iowa State was Utah in ISU's home opener Sept. 23 at Clyde Williams Field. The Cyclones struggled in the first half, finding themselves behind 16-14 at the break. After the half, it was all ISU. Led by Amundson, the Clones came away with a 44-22 victory. Strachan once again was the top rusher, garnering 116 yards on 24 carries. ISU safety John Schweizer secured the Cyclone victory by returning an interception 19 yards for the final touchdown of the day.

The third nonconference opponent for Iowa State was a home matchup Sept. 30 against New Mexico. ISU's offense racked up big numbers while the defense recorded its second shutout of the season with a 31-0 victory. Amundson was the heart of ISU's offense, piling up 233 yards of total offense. The game marked the return of Krepfle, who had one TD reception.

Now 3-0 and ranked nationally (18th) by The Associated Press for just the second time in school history, ISU headed into tough Big Eight Conference play. First up was a trip to Boulder, Colo., on Oct. 14th to face Colorado. CU was ranked 13th in that week's AP poll. Playing before 51,668 fans, the largest crowd to witness a sporting event in Colorado, the Cyclones struggled to get things going. ISU committed five turnovers and was penalized 121 yards. Iowa State left Colorado with its first loss, a 34-22 defeat.

ISU returned home the next weekend to face Kansas State on Oct. 21. The Wildcats had been picked to finish ahead of the Cyclones in the preseason Big Eight rankings. With a chip on its shoulder, ISU set out to capture its first Big Eight victory of the season in front of 35,893 Cyclone fans. ISU's offense put up big numbers en route to a 55-22 victory. Amundson picked up 227 yards of total offense with 201 coming through the air. Strachan rushed for 133 yards and two TDs. The defense was led by senior Greg Mulhall, who added to Iowa State's lead with a 25-yard interception return for a touchdown.

Ranked 14th nationally in the AP poll after its victory over KSU, ISU now traveled to Kansas to face the Jayhawks. Iowa State got off to a great start when Amundson hit Jones with a 49-yard TD bomb on the Cyclones' first play. Amundson tallied 288 total yards of total offense, throwing for 178 yards and two scores in Iowa State's 34-8 victory.

No. 7 Oklahoma came to Ames the next Saturday. The Sooners stole a 20-6 victory on a muddy field. ISU had cut Oklahoma's lead to 13-6 with a Tom television. ISU lost a 6-5 game that produced no touchdowns. The day's redeeming feature was the Liberty Bowl invitation the Cyclones accepted after the contest.

Iowa State stumbled in its final two games of the season, falling 45-14 at Oklahoma State and 27-14 at San Diego State.

ISU headed into the Liberty Bowl with a 5-5-1 record. The Cyclones' opponent, Georgia Tech, brought a 6-4-1 record into the game, having lost its final game of the season. Records aside, both teams came ready to play and left it all on the field.

Iowa State led 14-3 after the first quarter and a Willie Jones Liberty Bowl-record 93-yard kickoff return gave the Cyclones a 21-17 halftime edge. Georgia Tech regained the lead, but the Cyclones took advantage of a Tech turnover late in the game. Amundson hit Ike Harris on a 5-yard TD pass with 1:36 left to cut the Tech lead to 31-30, but Amundson's two-point conversion pass fell incomplete to end the Cyclones' chances for victory before 50,021 emotionally spent fans, as well as an ABC-TV prime-time national audience.

The 1972 squad, though diluted with injuries, proved that it could play with the top football powers in the country. Three players earned first team all-Big Eight, including Amundson, offensive lineman Geary Murdoch and defensive end Merv Krakau. Amundson beat out Nebraska Heisman Trophy winner Johnny Rodgers for Big Eight Player of the Year honors. Following ISU's loss in the Liberty Bowl, Majors confirmed he was leaving Ames to take over coaching duties at Pittsburgh. He would lead the Panthers to a national championship four years later.

Amundson set school records for pass attempts (332), completions (155), interceptions (17), passing yards (2,110) and TD passes (17). His 2,387 total yards was a school record at the time. Strachan tied Amundson's rushing mark from the previous season, leading the Big Eight with 1,260 yards. Jones had 36 receptions for 671 yards and five TDs.

Goedjen field goal with only four minutes remaining. The Cyclone defense was unable to stop OU and the Sooners drove down the field to put the game out of reach.

Nebraska was ISU's next foe in the Cyclones' Nov. 11 home season finale. The Huskers came to Ames with a seven-game win streak and a No. 3 AP ranking. NU was 4-0 in Big Eight play with the closest game a 33-10 blowout of Colorado. Iowa State was 5-2 and ranked 17th. The largest crowd in Clyde Williams Field history watched Nebraska take a 7-0 lead before Amundson drove the Cyclones 72 yards early in the second quarter to tie the game. A Goedjen 45-yard field goal gave ISU a 10-7 edge. Nebraska answered, driving 81 yards in six plays to beat the second-quarter gun and take a 13-10 lead into the lockerroom. Amundson hit Krepfle with a 33-yard scoring strike for the third quarter's only points. The Cornhuskers took a 20-17 fourth-quarter lead on a 35-yard touchdown pass from David Humm to Heisman Trophy winner Johnny Rodgers.

The game was just heating up. Rich Sanger's 36-yard field goal with 63 seconds left extended the Nebraska lead to 23-17. After the ensuing kickoff return, ISU would have to drive 74 yards to tie the game. Amundson was up to the challenge, driving ISU to the goal in only 35 seconds. He completed four passes, the last to Jones deep in the east corner of the south endzone for the tying touchdown. After order was restored to a frenzied Clyde Williams Field and jubilant fans were cleared from the field, Goedjen missed the extra-point attempt, leaving the Cyclones with a 23-23 draw. Goedjen would not miss another extra point the rest of his career.

After the tie against Nebraska, ISU moved up to 12th on the AP poll, the second-highest spot ever held by a Cyclone team. Iowa State traveled to Columbia, Mo., Nov. 18 to face the Tigers on national

Dexter Green, one of Iowa State's most prolific running backs, rushed for 172 yards in the 1977 Peach Bowl.

Fresh off an impressive showing in 1976, the Iowa State football team had a lot to look forward to and much to prove heading into the 1977 campaign. Fifth-year head coach Earle Bruce and the Cyclones were still stinging after being spurned by bowl scouts the previous fall.

Bruce's Cyclones were blessed with the return of a fine core of starters on both sides of the ball. The defense, which anchored this team, was led by defensive linemen

Mike Stensrud and Tom Randall. The pair was the first Cyclone defensive line duo to earn first-team all-Big Eight honors in the same season. The secondary featured first-team all-Big Eight cornerback Kevin Hart. Junior captain Tom Boskey earned second-team all-Big Eight honors for his fierce play at linebacker.

The offensive leader would again be diminutive tailback Dexter Green. "Money" rushed for 1,240 yards and scored 15 TDs in 1977. The junior would earn first-team all-Big Eight honors and become the Cyclones' all-time leading rusher.

The Cyclones began the season with an encouraging 3-1 record in non-conference play, defeating Wichita State (35-9), Bowling Green (35-21) and Dayton (17-13), while falling to Iowa (12-10) in the schools' first meeting in over 40 years. Despite the heartbreaking loss, the Cyclones still had hopes for a bowl bid heading into the conference home opener against Missouri. Behind a strong defensive effort, ISU upended Missouri 7-0, the Cyclones' first shutout win over the Tigers since 1934. Green scored the only touchdown of the game with a 28-yard scamper in the fourth quarter. His run was all ISU needed, as the defense stymied the Tiger offense, holding Mizzou to 166 yards of total offense.

The Big Eight road was not going to get any easier with ninth-ranked Nebraska waiting for ISU in Lincoln the next weekend. The Cornhuskers, still smarting from ISU's 1976 victory in Ames, entered the contest after defeating nationally ranked Alabama the previous week. NU scored first with an I.M. Hipp 59-yard TD in the first quarter. ISU promptly answered with a 13-play, 76-yard scoring drive that ended with quarterback Terry Rubley's 5-yard run on the option to even the score. Another Hipp touchdown, this time from 17 yards, gave NU a 14-7 lead, but it was quickly followed by Green's 19-yard TD run to once again even the score (14-14). ISU finally took its first lead in the seesaw affair after Mike Clemons recovered Husker quarterback Randy Garcia's fumble. The turnover led to a 3-yard Cal Cummins TD run to give ISU a 21-14 edge at intermission.

ISU kicker Scott Kollman extended the lead to 24-14 early in the third quarter with a 32-yard field goal. Hipp scored his third TD of the day in the third quarter to close the gap to 24-21, but the ISU defense shut down NU's comeback to register a second-straight win over the Cornhuskers. Green and Cummins carried for 139 and 115 yards on the ground, respectively.

Riding high from the win over Nebraska and sporting a 5-

1 record and a No. 16 national ranking, the Cyclones traveled to No. 6 Oklahoma the following weekend. ISU's upward momentum did not continue, as the Cyclones suffered a 35-16 loss in front of 71,184 fans. The Cyclones took a 16-14 lead in the third quarter with a 44-yard scoring run from Green and a 12-yard catch by Guy Preston, but the Sooner wishbone offense came alive to hold off a Cyclone triumph. Green outgained OU's Kenny King 177-146. The loss proved costly for ISU, as nose guard Ron McFarland, who would earn second-team All-America honors from Football News, was lost for the season with a knee injury.

Now 5-2 and out of the national rankings, ISU came back with a vengeance in a 41-3 thrashing of Kansas before a homecoming crowd of 48,500. It was the biggest conference victory margin ever by a Bruce-coached ISU team, as the Cyclone defense held KU to 189 yards of total offense. Iowa State capitalized on three-straight Jayhawk turnovers by scoring a trio of touchdowns en route to a 21-3 halftime lead. Green scored two TDs and Terry Rubley dove in from one yard out during the scoring bonanza. Green ended the day with 149 yards rushing, while Rubley tallied 130 yards through the air. Rubley and freshman John Quinn provided the necessary support from the signal-caller position all season after fifth-year senior Mike Tryon was lost for the year in the season-opener with a separated shoulder.

ISU could not extend its winning streak the following weekend, suffering a 12-7 loss to Colorado in Ames and falling to 6-3 overall and 3-2 in the conference. ISU's offense was stagnant, mustering a season-low 96 yards on the ground.

Iowa State made amends for the CU loss and kept its bowl chances alive with an inspirational 22-15 win at Kansas State the following Saturday. ISU outgained the Wildcats 394-262 in total offense. The Cyclones did most of their damage on the ground, producing 307 yards on the run, with 139 coming from Green. Rubley connected on two throwing strikes, a 17-yarder to Tom Buck and a 15-yard lob to Stan Hixon, in the second quarter.

The season finale vs. Oklahoma State in Ames was pivotal for ISU. A loss would take the Cyclones out of contention for a bowl bid, while a win would keep its bowl hopes alive. Scouts from the Peach and Hall of Fame Bowls watched ISU down the Cowboys 21-13 to end the regular season at 8-3 overall and 5-2 in the Big Eight. Green was stellar, scoring all three touchdowns, two by run and one by air, while gaining a game-high 176 yards on 30 carries.

The next day, only the Peach Bowl had a vacancy and ISU was still waiting for an invitation. Peach Bowl officials finally made their decision, selecting Iowa State to battle North Carolina State.

No one was happier about the selection than Bruce. "Our kids deserve this," Bruce said. "They worked very hard for it, and I'm sure glad they got it. This was one of our goals when the season started -- to go to a bowl game and make up for last year."

Iowa State's defense, Tom Perticone (33), Jerry Washington (17), Mark Settle (57), Greg Rensink (71), Mike Stensrud (63), Craig Volkens (52) and Tom Boskey (96) after holding North Carolina State late in ISU's Peach Bowl defeat.

Heading into the New Year's Eve showdown, the Cyclones found themselves a slight favorite over North Carolina State. Over 12,000 ISU fans traveled to Fulton County Stadium in Atlanta, Ga., to watch a game that was billed the Dexter Green-Ted Brown showdown. Brown was N.C. State's top runner and would later star in the NFL with the Minnesota Vikings.

Brown did his damage in the game, rushing for 114 yards, but the star of the game was Wolfpack quarterback Johnny Evans, who gained 264 yards of total offense to help NCSU to a 24-14 win. N.C. State opened the scoring with a 77-yard bomb from Evans to Randy Hall in the first quarter. North Carolina State closed out the half with two more scores and a 21-0 advantage at intermission. With ISU's offense stalling, Bruce inserted Quinn at quarterback. Both teams were scoreless in the third stanza before ISU finally scored early in the fourth on a fourth-down, 1-yard TD run from Quinn to make it a 21-7 game. N.C. State followed with a 42-yard field goal from Jay Sherrill, but ISU quickly answered with a 68-yard, 13-play drive culminated by a 10-yard touchdown pass from Quinn to Greg Meckstroth to cut the gap to 24-14. After a Wolfpack punt, ISU's comeback hopes were all but dashed when Quinn was intercepted. Green posted a valiant effort in the loss, gaining 172 yards.

ISU compiled its second-straight 8-3 regular-season record and earned its third bowl bid in school history. The Cyclones tied for second in the conference with their most wins in Big Eight history, going 5-2 in the nation's best gridiron alliance. All of these achievements helped Bruce earn his second-straight Big Eight Coach of the Year award. Not bad for a team that was predicted to finish sixth in the Big Eight's preseason poll.

All-American defensive tackle Mike Stensrud led Iowa State's defensive efforts in a pair of bowl seasons. A first-team all-Big Eight selection in 1977 and 1978, he finished his career with 306 tackles before a long career in the NFL.

With 14 starters returning from the 1977 Peach Bowl squad, who could argue with high expectations for the 1978 Cyclone football team? Head coach Earle Bruce was beginning his sixth season at Iowa State, engineering one of the biggest turnarounds in college football during the 1970s. Bruce had seven starters returning on both offense and defense, including Heisman Trophy candidate Dexter Green at tailback and Outland Trophy hopeful Mike Stensrud at defensive tackle.

The Cyclones were ranked 20th in The Associated Press preseason poll, the first time an ISU squad was ranked in the top 20 on opening day. ISU traveled to Rice for the season opener, winning the game 23-19. ISU struggled to get started on offense, coming from behind in a Texas downpour to score two fourth-quarter touchdowns. Dexter Green scored all three ISU touchdowns, gaining 165 yards on the ground to save the day.

After squeaking by San Diego State 14-13 at home the following weekend, the Cyclones had a date at intrastate rival Iowa. Bruce's squad sought to avenge the previous season's upset loss to the Hawkeyes. Critics were miffed at ISU's lackluster offensive display in the season's first two contests. ISU put together one of its best offensive outings of the season to wax Iowa 31-0 in front of 60,075 fans in Kinnick Stadium.

The hero of the Iowa game was quarterback Walter Grant, a Texan who transferred from nearby Ellsworth (Iowa) C.C. Grant saw limited action in the first two games, but replaced starter Terry Rubley in the third series of the intrastate battle. Grant directed ISU to two TDs and a field goal to give the Cyclones a 17-0 lead over the Hawkeyes at the half. Iowa State, which only attempted six passes vs. San Diego State, used Grant's arm to perfection in the rout of Iowa. Grant threw a 47-yard bomb to Stan Hixon on the second play of the second quarter for ISU's first score. Iowa fumbled on its next possession when Tom Perticone forced the ball loose from Hawkeye quarterback Pete Gales. Three plays later, Grant hit Ray Hardee on a 6-yard TD pass. Grant hit Hixon for another score in the third quarter from 28 yards out. A Victor Mack 7-yard TD run capped off ISU's win. Grant ended the day 7-of-10 for 139 yards passing and picked up 34 rushing yards.

Drake was ISU's next victim, suffering a 35-7 loss on Sept. 30 in Ames. Green became Iowa State's then-all-time leading rusher, collecting 102 yards. The win propelled ISU to No. 15 in the AP poll, its best start since the 1938 squad won its first seven games. However, the Cyclones were set to battle top 20 teams in Nebraska, Missouri and Oklahoma on consecutive Saturdays.

Nebraska, ranked 10th nationally, prevailed in the Oct. 7 Cyclone-Cornhusker clash by shutting out Iowa State 23-0, holding the ISU offense to just 82 yards.

Next up was a trip to No. 19 Missouri. The Tigers took advantage of five Cyclone turnovers to top ISU 26-13. No. 1 Oklahoma dropped

Iowa State to 0-3 in conference play with a 34-6 win Oct. 21 in Ames. Billy Sims, the season's Heisman Trophy winner, ran wild against the ISU defense with 231 yards on 20 carries. The Cyclones' lone score came on a 46-yard bomb from Grant to Hardee.

Now 4-3 overall and 0-3 in the conference, ISU would have to run the table in its final four Big Eight games to have any chance for a second-straight bowl appearance.

The Cyclones dodged a bullet the following week in Lawrence, Kan., squeaking out a 13-7 win over Kansas. Sophomore tailback Victor Mack came to the rescue for the Cyclones, tallying 111 yards while subbing for an injured Green, who went out of the game in the first quarter with a chest bruise. ISU's defense also came alive, holding the Jayhawks to 267 yards of total offense.

The defense kept up its stellar play by shutting out Kansas State 24-0 the next weekend at homecoming in Ames. ISU boosted its record to 6-3 and clinched its third-straight winning season. Green was back in action for the Cyclones, outrushing the entire Wildcat team 105-97.

The Oklahoma State Cowboys were waiting for Iowa State in Stillwater the following weekend. Bruce labeled the match up a "bowl game" because of its importance. Grant and Green each scored on a pair of touchdown runs to give the Cyclones a 28-15 win and a 7-3 overall record.

The following week was a showdown with Colorado in Boulder, Colo. The game, which was broadcast to a national television audience, was ISU's biggest contest of the season. A win would end CU's 12-year win streak over Iowa State and seal a bowl bid for the regenerated Cyclones.

The game was close throughout, with ISU clinging to a 17-10 halftime lead. A 27-yard first-half TD pass from Grant to Hardee and a 24-yard field goal from Steve Johnson gave ISU a 10-0 lead. After a CU touchdown closed the gap, Grant rumbled into the endzone from five yards out before the Buffs closed the half with a field goal. The second half was a defensive battle, but the ISU defense came up with big plays down the stretch. Mike Stensrud had 16 stops and caused a fumble to help ISU preserve a 20-16 win over the Buffs. The win earned ISU a Hall of Fame Bowl bid.

Texas A&M was ISU's Hall of Fame Bowl opponent Dec. 20 in Birmingham, Ala. ISU was ranked 19th nationally and considered a slight favorite before the game. Aggie Curtis Dickey racked up a Hall of Fame Bowl record 276 yards en route to a 28-12 TAMU victory. Dickey accumulated 184 yards in the first half with runs of 54, 35, 25 and 21 yards. ISU got on the board first after a scoreless first quarter. Green capped off an impressive scoring drive with a 5-yard TD run. The extra-point try failed when the center snap was low to make the score 6-0. A&M battled back with a David Brothers 1-yard run followed by a Gerald Carter 4-yard TD reception with eight seconds left in the half, giving the Aggies a 14-6 intermission lead.

Late in the third quarter it looked like the Cyclones were going to make it close with a 13-play, 96-yard drive that ended with a 29-yard touchdown run from Green on a fourth-and-three situation. ISU's two-point conversion failed when Grant's pass was picked off in the endzone to keep the score at 14-12. Dickey scored his only TD of the evening with nine minutes left in the game to give the Aggies a 21-12 lead. TAMU sealed the victory when it recovered a fumbled punt at the Cyclone 5-yard line. Adger Armstrong ran it in on the following play to close out the scoring at 28-12. Green finished with 148 rushing yards, while ISU end Rick White was named defensive player of the game.

Defensive tackle Mike Stensrud and tailback Dexter Green were named to the all-Big Eight first team and were tabbed All-Americans for the second consecutive season. Green ended the campaign as ISU's all-time leading rusher and was just nine yards shy of an unprecedented third consecutive 1,000-yard season. Stensrud closed out his career with 306 tackles, 47 of them behind the line of scrimmage. Also joining Green and Stensrud on the Big Eight's first team were White and safety Mike Schwartz. Linebacker Tom Boskey and offensive tackle Dick Cuvelier were second team all-conference picks, while Boskey's brother, Chris, was named Big Eight Newcomer of the Year.

The successful ride ISU enjoyed during the Bruce era goes down in history as one of the most prolific winning periods in Cyclone football. Bruce stepped down as the Cyclone skipper following the season to accept the grid post at Ohio State, leaving with a 36-32 mark in his six seasons in Ames.

Reggie Hayward capped his career by earning defensive MVP honors in Iowa State's 37-29 victory over Pittsburgh in the 2000 Insight.com in Phoenix.

To the uninitiated, the sight of nearly 30,000 Iowa State fans among the 2000 Insight.com Bowl crowd of 41,813 packing the Bank One Ballpark was in itself impressive. The spontaneous post-game celebration, as a hoard of Cyclone backers flooded the field after ISU's 37-29 win over Pittsburgh capped a remarkable 9-3 season, emphasized the magnitude of the Cyclones' achievement under head coach Dan McCarney, his staff and determined squad. The victory staked McCarney's reputation as a program-builder and underscored the effort of a team that bought into the vision their coach had first laid out when he arrived in Ames more than six years before.

What coach and recruits did have was the commitment, backed by the University administration's investment in major facility upgrades, to take Iowa State football back to where it hadn't been since Jimmy Carter was president and the Bee Gees owned the Billboard Top 40 -- a bowl game.

It didn't happen overnight. Troy Davis' Heisman-like 2,000-yard rushing efforts highlighted Iowa State's first two seasons under McCarney, but the Cyclones slipped to 1-10 in 1997, the first year of competition for several in ISU's senior class of 2000. There was an upturn in 1998 as Iowa State won at Iowa, breaking a string of 15-straight losses to its intrastate rival and snapping a 31-game winless road streak dating back seven years. In 1999, the Cyclones opened the fall with three wins and took nationally ranked Kansas State, Texas and Colorado to the wire before losing.

The Iowa State athletic department promoted the 2000 campaign as "Not Just Another Season." The first positive indicator came in the season opener Sept. 2 against Ohio in Ames. In blazing heat, Ennis Haywood, the heir apparent at tailback after Troy and Darren Davis, rushed for 159 yards in his first start as the Cyclones pulled away to a 25-15 victory. Iowa State quarterback Sage Rosenfels stepped up Sept. 9 in Ames against UNLV and head coach John Robinson. Rosenfels passed for 286 yards and two touchdowns. Iowa State's defensive end Reggie Hayward, the Cyclones' most heralded defender, came up big with 10 tackles, two sacks and a blocked extra point as ISU prevailed, 37-22.

The following week at intrastate rival Iowa on Sept. 16, wide receiver J.J. Moses, a key all season in Iowa State's offensive success, dashed 58 yards for a touchdown on a reverse, the first offensive play for ISU in the game. Rosenfels passed for 228 yards and rushed for two scores, the second TD climaxing a game-clinching drive that iced a 24-14 win. Behind Rosenfels, Moses, Haywood and a rapidly developing offensive line, Iowa State rolled up 485 total yards, the most ever by an ISU team against Iowa as the Cyclones tallied their third-straight win over the Hawkeyes. ISU defensive tackle James Reed, who would finish the season ranking second all-time among Cyclone down linemen with 333 career tackles, made nine tackles against the Hawks with 1 1/2 sacks.

Nebraska. That put redshirt freshman back Michael Wagner in the spotlight. Like an understudy replacing the star of a musical, Wagner made the most of his opportunity. He rushed for an ISU freshman-record 170 yards in a wild game that featured 960 yards of total offense and five lead changes. Oklahoma State was driving late when Cyclone cornerback Atif Austin picked off an Aso Pogi pass. Rosenfels drove ISU to the OSU 33-yard line with the score tied 26-26 and just 18 seconds remaining in the game. In what may have been the biggest single play of the season, Rosenfels knifed a pass over the middle between defenders to Lane Danielsen, who raced into the end zone for the winning score. There were other heroes. Carl Gomez, ISU's southpaw punter for four seasons, stepped in to provide the answer for the Cyclones' erratic kicking game. He hit on field-goal attempts of 20 and 34 yards in the fourth quarter as Iowa State improved to 5-1 for the first time in 20 years.

Another ABC-TV audience and sellout crowd greeted the Cyclones for their Oct. 21 game against Texas A&M. Cyclone fans had high hopes, but the Aggies controlled the game, holding an Iowa State offense that had averaged 446.5 yards to just 239 total yards. Texas A&M won 30-7. ISU rebounded the following week with a 39-20 win over Missouri as Haywood rushed for 214 yards and freshman free safety Marc Timmons had the game's biggest play, returning an interception 78 yards for a touchdown. The win gave ISU its first winning season since 1989 and made the Cyclones bowl eligible.

The No. 19 Kansas State Wildcats brought Iowa State back to earth the following weekend in Manhattan, Kan., 56-10. The last two games would go a long way toward determining how this team would be remembered. There was more history to be made.

The Cyclones ventured to Colorado for a Nov. 11 matchup against a foe they had not beaten since 1983, ISU's longest active

After an off-week, Haywood rushed for a career-high 241 yards in a 31-17 win at Baylor Sept. 30, and the Cyclones were 4-0 for the first time in 20 years. The next Saturday, before a sell-out Jack Trice Stadium crowd and ABC-TV audience, ISU trailed No. 2 Nebraska 21-20 with 6:46 left in the third quarter, but Nebraska pulled away late to win 49-27. The Cyclones prepared to head for Stillwater, Okla., for what proved to be a pivotal game in the season.

The Cyclones got some bad news before kickoff in Stillwater. Haywood, the Big 12's leading rusher, could not play because of a rib injury sustained against losing streak against an annual opponent. On the snowy tundra of Boulder, Colo., Rosenfels played one of the best games of his career. The senior ran for 140 yards and two TDs and threw a 44-yard scoring toss to Moses. The Cyclone defense forced four second-half turnovers for a 35-27 win.

In the season finale against Kansas, Haywood rushed for 190 yards and a score and Wagner ran for 102 yards with a 66-yard TD scamper. The Cyclones gave their fans what they came to see, Iowa State's first eight-win season in 22 years with a 38-17 win over the Jayhawks. The ISU offense, which averaged 424 yards per game during the season, ranks as the fourth-best in school history. Center Ben Bruns was an All-American as the offensive line got big boosts from junior college transfer Lorenzo White and senior Andy Stensrud, who moved from tight end to tackle. Haywood was a unanimous choice for first-team all-Big 12 honors, leading the league in rushing at 123.7 yards per game. Hayward and Reed earned all-Big 12 honors by leading a defense that put a premium on take-a-ways.

Iowa State fans flocked en masse to Phoenix for the Insight.com Bowl to see their Cyclones battle a Pittsburgh team that featured Biletnikoff Award-winning Antonio Bryant at wide receiver. The 7-4 Panthers struck first on a 72-yard TD pass from John Turman to Bryant. Iowa State owned the rest of the half as Rosenfels totally dominated the game. Showing the savvy and athleticism that made him a special player, the senior threw a pair of TD passes to Chris Anthony and led ISU on four consecutive scoring drives to give the Cyclones a 27-7 halftime lead.

Pitt fought back. A 44-yard TD pass from Turman to Bryant closed the gap to 27-20 late in the third quarter. The ISU defense held the Panthers on their next drive, setting up the play of the game. JaMaine Billups, subbing for the injured J.J. Moses, made his first collegiate punt return something to remember, dashing through a hole and down the sidelines in a 72-yard touchdown scamper that ranks among the biggest plays in school history. The TD gave Iowa State some breathing room that was padded by a Gomez 41-yard field goal with 4:53 left. The Cyclone defense, led by Hayward, the defensive player of the game, ended a final Pitt drive. Rosenfels finished the game 23-of-34 through the air for 308 yards and the two TDs to earn offensive player of the game honors.

The final gun started a cathartic postgame celebration. The Cyclones were ranked 25th on the final poll of The Associated Press and 23rd on the ESPN/USA Today rankings. The first bowl game victory in school history put Iowa State back on the football map and back in the national polls for the first time in more than 19 years.

Seneca Wallace was voted MainStay Independence Bowl offensive player of the game, completing 25-of-42 passes for 284 yards.

American pop culture is full of one-hit wonders-- musicians, actors and artists who could never summon the personal reserve to create an encore to their initial achievements. After an historic 9-3 season that climaxed with Iowa State's 37-29 win over Pittsburgh in the 2000 Insight.com Bowl, Cyclone head coach Dan McCarney faced that very challenge: how to improve on the school's first nine-win season since 1906 that ended with ISU's first-ever bowl game victory. Having already done what the cynics said was impossible, McCarney's staff faced the prospect of proving in 2001 that the previous season was not an aberration made possible by the proper alignment of the planets. They would do it with a team that lost 13 starters, including three NFL draft picks, from Iowa State's first bowl team in 22 years.

There were reasons for optimism. The Cyclones returned the Big 12 Conference's leading rusher in Ennis Haywood, and junior college transfer quarterback Seneca Wallace was the talk of spring football; his abilities were evident even to the uneducated eye during practice. But the Cyclone defensive line, which sent four players to NFL camps, would need to be totally retooled. This mix of old and new would determine whether Iowa State could notch back-to-back bowl bids for the first time since 1977-78.

Even the most cautious Cyclones were wowed by Wallace in the season opener against Northern Iowa Sept. 8 in Ames. The 6-1, 184-pound signal caller from Sacramento, Calif., dazzled the crowd of 47,092 with first-quarter TD runs of 27 and 60 yards. The latter touchdown dash was the longest by an ISU quarterback in 26 years. Haywood opened with 107 yards and two TDs in a 45-0 victory. Iowa State's defense swarmed around Northern Iowa's offensive attack, making six interceptions, the most by a Cyclone defense in a game since 1976. Takeaways became a major theme throughout the season as ISU's defense forced 26 turnovers, resulting in 69 ISU points, while the Cyclones committed only 14 turnovers for 37 opponent points, ranking Iowa State 11th nationally and first in the Big 12 in turnover margin.

Because of the Sept. 11 tragedies, the Cyclones' intrastate showdown against Iowa in Ames, scheduled for Sept. 15, was postponed until Nov. 24. ISU then traveled to Athens, Ohio, for a Sept. 22 contest at Ohio. Wallace completed 15-of-28 passes for 250 yards and a pair of touchdowns and Haywood rushed for 219 yards on 33 carries in a 31-28 Cyclone win. Sophomore Lane Danielsen, who would emerge as ISU's top receiver, made seven catches for 110 yards and had 47 rushing yards and a touchdown. Iowa State's 558 yards of total offense was the second-best road game total in school history.

If there were any doubts about Wallace's ability to dominate a game, his effort in a 41-0 win over Baylor Sept. 29 in Ames laid them to rest. Wallace was close to perfect, completing 22-of-24 passes, including a Big 12 Conference record 18-straight completions, for 299 yards and four touchdowns. The Cyclone defense, which was a major question mark heading into the season, posted its first conference shutout since 1978. The defense, which returned only four starters from the 2000 campaign and featured just three senior starters, was underscoring the success of McCarney's recruiting efforts to upgrade ISU's football future.

2001 Independence Bowl

The Iowa State drive back to a bowl faltered in Lincoln, Neb., on Oct. 6, as fourth-ranked Nebraska beat the Cyclones 48-14. The loss set the stage for a big game at Missouri on Oct. 13 in Columbia, Mo. In a cold, rainy Homecoming game at Faurot Field, Iowa State clawed back from a 14-7 third-quarter deficit to take a 17-14 lead on a 21-yard Tony Yelk field goal with 6:30 left in the game. Iowa State's Hiawatha Rutland forced a Mizzou fumble on the ensuing kickoff return, setting up another Yelk field goal that gave the Cyclones a 20-14 lead with 3:48 to play. But Missouri did not quit. The Tigers drove all the way to the Iowa State 4-yard line. On fourth-and-goal, Cyclone strong safety Adam Runk made a diving deflection of Kirk Farmer's pass with three seconds left, the pinnacle of a dramatic goal-line stand that affirmed Iowa State's bend-but-don't-break defense. Yelk's punting complemented his two field goals, repeatedly pinning Missouri deep in its own territory. The freshman, who ironically was recruited for his place-kicking skills, became the nation's top frosh punter. His average of 43.8 yards per punt in 2001 is the second-best mark in school history.

Haywood, who would finish the season as the seventh Cyclone in school history to rush for more than 1,000 yards in at least two seasons, carried 39 times for 196 yards and three touchdowns in a 28-14 victory over Oklahoma State Oct. 20 in Ames. Wallace was at his confounding best, turning seven third-down situations into first downs — four times on scrambles and three times with passes as Iowa State moved to 5-1 for the second-straight season. Sophomore safety Marc Timmons had 11 tackles and Runk another interception as the Cyclone defense held OSU to 42 yards rushing.

Wallace was spectacular the following week at Texas A&M, but ISU dropped a 24-21 decision to the Aggies on Oct. 27 in College Station, Texas. The loss was the most frustrating of the season as the Cyclones missed four field goal attempts. Wallace did all he could, equaling the school record with 30 completions in 46 pass attempts for 348 yards and two TDs, but Iowa State could not overcome its missed opportunities.

The demands of playing in the nation's premier football conference were on full display in home field losses to Kansas State (42-3) and eventual Big 12 champion Colorado (40-27) in Ames. Those defeats meant the team's legacy would ride on the season's final two games, at Kansas and against Iowa.

The Cyclones made a huge statement at Kansas on Nov. 17, crushing the Jayhawks 49-7 for ISU's biggest road win since 1923. Haywood rushed for 185 yards and four TDs as the Cyclones outrushed KU 320-85. Five different Iowa State defenders made interceptions.

One game remained, the postponed match against the Hawkeyes.

Iowa State and Iowa met in a regular season finale for the first time since 1920, and the media stoked the intrastate fire by calling the contest the most anticipated in series history. Both teams were 6-4 and anxious to stake a claim for their fans and their leagues. Iowa was favored.

If the measure of a great player is how he plays in the big games, then Wallace's performance against the Hawkeyes was a first-hand demonstration of why he was named the Big 12 Conference's offensive newcomer of the year. Wallace completed 20-of-27 passes for 228 yards and a touchdown as several themes of Cyclone victory figured large as they had all season. Wallace's pinpoint passing, three Iowa turnovers, Haywood's inside running and a defensive effort that produced three sacks and stiffened when it had to late in the game led to Iowa State's fourth-straight win over the Hawks, a series first. Runk killed another last-ditch opponent drive with an interception to ice the win.

It had been a season that began with a lot more questions than answers. But the Cyclones, bowl-bound for the second-straight season, proved they were more than a one-hit wonder. Haywood finished the season with 1,169 yards and ranked fifth in ISU history with 2,862 career rushing yards. Runk, offensive lineman Marcel Howard and defensive lineman Jordan Carstens earned all-Big 12 honors. The Cyclone defense allowed an average of 21 points per game, the best ISU mark since 1982.

Iowa State accepted its second-straight bowl bid, a berth in the Independence Bowl in Shreveport, La., on Dec. 27 to face Alabama. Iowa State dominated the game. The Cyclones outgained the Crimson Tide 456-269. Wallace, who earned offensive player of the game honors, was at his best. The junior completed 25-of-42 passes for 284 yards. Haywood had 125 yards on 20 carries. Matt Word had a big game for an ISU defense that held Alabama's rushing attack in check with six tackles and one of the Cyclones' four sacks. But Iowa State had trouble converting its drives into points. The Cyclones missed three field goal attempts. A blocked punt set up Alabama's go-ahead touchdown with 4:44 left, giving the Tide a 14-13 lead. Wallace then drove the Cyclones on a 14-play, 61-yard drive, but Yelk's 47-yard field goal attempt sailed over the right upright. The kick looked good to the Cyclone players, but not to the officials. It was a tough way to end a great season. But Iowa State was back on the national football map. For Cyclone fans and players, 2002 could not come fast enough.

Craig Campbell closed out his Cyclone career with seven catches for 109 yards in the Independence Bowl.

Anthony Forrest was named defensive player of the game after collecting 14 tackles, including one sack.

Tempered optimism was the outlook expressed by most Iowa State football fans before the start of the 2002 season. Optimism was based on back-to-back bowl seasons posted in 2000 and 2001 by the Cyclones under head coach Dan McCarney. Optimism was fueled by the return of quarterback Seneca Wallace, the 2001 Big 12 Conference Offensive Newcomer of the Year.

Thoughts of an unprecedented third-straight bowl game appearance were tempered because Iowa

State's 2002 schedule was the toughest in school history. The Cyclones would face eight 2001 bowl teams and had dates with five of The Associated Press' top 25 teams, most of them on the road. It remained to be seen if McCarney's Cyclones could negotiate the most daunting and longest schedule in school history.

Iowa State's invitation to open the season in the nationally televised Eddie Robinson Classic against third-rated Florida State in Kansas City, Mo., affirmed ISU's rise among collegiate programs nationwide. More than 40,000 Iowa State fans flocked to Arrowhead Stadium for the Aug. 24 contest.

It started badly. Florida State bolted to a 24-0 lead just six seconds into the second quarter and held a 31-14 advantage at the half. Cyclone fans who had traveled to the game still got their money's worth. When Wallace answered a Seminole TD with a 39-yard strike to Jamaul Montgomery, FSU's lead was just 38-31 with 5:26 left in the game. The Cyclones got one more chance and Wallace put on a show driving ISU down the field, climaxed by a 20-yard dash to the right corner of the end zone on which Wallace's outstretched hands appeared to have crossed the goal line plane. He was ruled out at the 1-yard line with four seconds left. Before a frantic crowd, Wallace was stopped at the goal line on an option play as the game ended. Florida State had won the game, but Wallace and his Iowa State teammates had won the hearts of fans and media from across the country. Wallace's final line of 22-of-33 passing, with 313 yards and two touchdowns, elevated him onto the national stage. There was more fun to come.

Hiawatha Rutland rushed for 122 yards and the Iowa State defense held Kansas to 150 yards of total offense as the Cyclones opened the conference season and made their first Jack Trice Stadium appearance the following weekend (Aug. 31) in Ames. Wallace passed for 230 yards and three touchdowns in a 45-3 Iowa State victory. ISU dispatched Tennessee Tech 58-6 in Ames the following Saturday (Sept. 7). An Iowa team thirsty to avenge four-straight losses to the Cyclones waited in the wings.

Before an ESPN2 national television audience, Iowa bolted to a 24-7 lead at intermission. Ultimately, the Hawkeye first-half performance set the stage for one of the biggest comebacks in Iowa State history.

Wallace took center stage, driving ISU 75 yards to start the second half, scoring from five yards out to close the gap. When Iowa quarterback Brad Banks fumbled on the ensuing Hawk drive,

2002 Humanitarian Bowl

it took Wallace and company just five plays to cut the Iowa lead to 24-21. Wallace's supporting cast included former walk-on receivers Lane Danielsen and Jack Whitver. Both native Iowans, the duo made the most of its time in the limelight, catching pass after Wallace pass, several in key third-down situations. Danielsen had five receptions for 131 yards and Whitver had eight catches for 132 yards.

The Cyclone comeback escalated as defensive tackle Tim TeBrink forced another Banks fumble at the Iowa 20. Joe Woodley scored two plays later and Iowa State had its first lead (28-24) before a stunned crowd.

When Iowa was forced to start its next drive at its own 5-yard line, ISU linebacker Jeremy Loyd tackled Hawkeye Aaron Greving in his endzone for a safety and a 30-24 lead. Loyd would have a great season, with 94 tackles, including 11 behind the line of scrimmage, six sacks and seven passes broken up in 13 games. After scoring 23 points in a span of 6:42, the Cyclones got two fourth-quarter field goals from Adam Benike and led 36-24 to notch a fifth-straight win over their intrastate rival. Wallace completed 23-of-37 passes with one TD. His second amazing performance on national television helped propel Iowa State into the AP top 25. Several of his throws against the Hawkeyes were on the run across his body illustrating his unique Seneca style. Iowa State outgained Iowa 446-400, 254-109 in the second half. The Cyclone defense held the Hawks to 29 yards rushing on 17 second-half carries. It was Iowa State's third-biggest comeback in school history and the Cyclones' third-straight win in Iowa City, matching the ISU teams that triumphed in Iowa City in 1894-95-97.

There was no letdown the following week as Iowa State whipped Troy State 42-12, setting up a much-anticipated showdown against No. 20 Nebraska in Ames. Iowa State, No. 19 on the AP poll, had not beaten the Huskers since 1992 and not beaten a rated team since 1993. A crowd of 51,888 jammed into Jack Trice Stadium, sensing something special. With an ABC-TV audience watching, the frenzied crowd got what they wanted. Iowa State's defense held Nebraska to 81 yards rushing and the Cyclones outgained Nebraska 412-273 as ISU scored its biggest win (36-14) over the Huskers since 1899. Wallace ran for two scores and threw for another. Michael Wagner rushed for 107 yards and Danielsen had a career-high nine receptions for 111 yards and a touchdown. True freshman nose guard Nick Leaders had nine tackles, three for loss and a pair of sacks. The domination was total. Nebraska, which turned the ball over five times, could muster just three first downs and 37 rushing yards on 20 carries over the first three quarters.

If there was anyone not yet on the Cyclone bandwagon, they were aboard after "The Play" on the following Saturday night in Ames before a nationally televised TBS broadcast-audience and another sellout crowd of 51,842. The clash between No. 11 ISU and Texas

Seneca Wallace led Iowa State to an unprecedented third consecutive bowl game.

Tech was promoted as a showdown between Wallace and Texas Tech quarterback Kliff Kingsbury. But a predicted offensive contest was locked 3-3 at halftime. The Iowa State defense frustrated a Red Raider offense that had averaged 48.3 points in its previous three outings. Then on the Cyclones' second possession of the second half, ISU faced second-and-11 at the Texas Tech 12. What followed was the play of the year as Wallace took the snap and was chased all the way back to the 32-yard line. He then ran down the right sideline, cutting back against the grain at the 10-yard line, got a great block from Wagner and dashed into the endzone on a 12-yard TD dash that covered 135 yards. "The Play" gave Iowa State a 10-3 lead. Texas Tech answered with a TD drive but Danielsen scored on a 79-yard reverse to put the Cyclones ahead for good in a 31-17 win.

"The Play" was diagramed the next week in Sports Illustrated. Iowa State was ranked ninth nationally on the AP poll, an all-time school high. No. 2 Oklahoma waited in Norman.

The Cyclones were set for the most brutal stretch in the nation's most brutal football conference. It did not go well in Norman as the Sooners held the Cyclones to 60 yards of total offense in a 49-3 decision. ISU was rated No. 17 the following week in Austin, Texas, against the No. 7 Longhorns. Iowa State led 10-7 at halftime but a third-quarter 59-yard TD run by Cedric Benson put the Longhorns ahead to stay for their 17th-straight home field win 21-10.

Ranked 22nd the following week, the Cyclones needed to regroup in yet another showdown of marquee quarterbacks, Wallace and Missouri signal-caller Brad Smith. Again, Wallace was the difference-maker. The senior tallied a school-record 493 total yards and carried ISU on a 93-yard scoring drive for the winning touchdown with 32 seconds left in a 42-35 victory. Wallace became Iowa State's all-time single-season and career total offense leader on a day in which the Cyclones tallied 602 total yards, the second-highest output against a conference foe in school history.

There was little time to celebrate. The No. 21 Cyclones marched into Manhattan, Kan., to play the No. 12 Wildcats. Six ISU turnovers contributed to a 58-7 loss. No. 17 Colorado was the next challenge in Boulder, Colo. It was a tight game. CU led 27-20 with five minutes left in the contest. After a Colorado turnover, ISU had the ball at the Buff 24-yard line. But Colorado answered with a defensive touchdown on a 71-yard fumble return. Wallace ran for a career-high 102 yards and hit on 24-of-35 passes for 265 yards and a touchdown.

The season entered its 14th week, with the regular-season finale against Connecticut in Ames. Iowa State led 20-10 after the first drive of the second half, but UConn tallied the game's final 27 points in a 37-20 Husky victory.

ISU regrouped to play yet another rated team, this time in the Humanitarian Bowl against Boise State in Boise, Idaho. The morning kickoff came in cool, rainy weather. Iowa State led 10-7 at halftime on a Benike field goal and a 6-yard TD pass from Wallace to Jamaul Montgomery. Boise State, backed by a raucous sellout home field crowd of more than 30,000, scored twice in the third quarter. Lane Danielsen's four-yard TD scamper with 2:34 left in the game closed the gap to 27-16, but Boise State prevailed 34-16.

Iowa State had earned a third-straight bowl bid against the toughest schedule in school history. It was a record-setting season.

Freshman quarterback Bret Meyer earned the Independence Bowl's offensive player of the game trophy after rushing for 122 of ISU's bowl-record 295 yards on the ground, adding 114 passing yards to his offensive output.

The 2004 Cyclones were picked for sixth in the Big 12 Conference's North Division because there was no seventh. Who could argue? ISU had lost its last 10 games of the 2003 season. The Cyclones didn't win a Big 12 game and were outscored 343-71 in those eight contests. Only a few people, including head coach Dan McCarney, believed a tightly bound team sprinkled with veterans but laden with more than 60 unproven freshmen and sophomores could visualize a return to the postseason as an attainable goal.

Such was the perception of Iowa State football that many considered the Cyclones an underdog when it opened the season Sept. 4 in Ames against Division I-AA foe Northern Iowa. By the end of the season opener, the Cyclone defense was the talk of the town.

It wasn't close. The Cyclone defense shut out Northern Iowa, holding the Panthers to just 99 total yards, the lowest mark for an Iowa State opponent in a quarter of a century. The final score read Iowa State 23, Northern Iowa 0.

The Cyclones headed two hours east to battle eventual Big Ten co-champion and intrastate rival Iowa. Iowa State had won three straight games against the Hawkeyes in Iowa City and the two teams battled evenly for four quarters. The ISU defense, led by junior linebacker Tim Dobbins (11 tackles), held Iowa to 85 rushing yards on 44 carries. The play of the game came on a 29-yard Iowa TD pass while Hobbs was on the sidelines after being shaken up. Dobbins was a major part of the Cyclone defense. His play, which included 61 tackles and two interceptions, helped him earn Big 12 Conference Defensive Newcomer of the Year honors from the league's coaches.

Another bowl-bound foe, Northern Illinois, was in Jack Trice Stadium the next weekend. Again, defense and special teams played a vital role. After Iowa State led 20-7, NIU ran off 27 straight points. But Hobbs blocked a punt for a score and linebacker Matt Robertson scored ISU's second touchdown by interception for a 48-41 win. Iowa State scored seven 2004 touchdowns on blocked kicks, fumble returns and interceptions. The Cyclones led the Big 12 with 17 interceptions and ranked second in the Big 12 and 12th nationally in turnover margin. Setting the pace was co-captain and senior cornerback Ellis Hobbs. The former running back had a great season, making 71 tackles and a team-high five interceptions.

The next three weeks were the high watermark for the doubters. Iowa State fumbled four times, leading to 17 Oklahoma State points in a 36-7 loss to the bowl-bound Cowboys in Stillwater, Okla. Oct. 2. Texas A&M, another 2004 bowl team, whipped the Cyclones 34-3 on Oct. 9 in Ames. The next loss was the most bizarre. Iowa State outgained Colorado 403-304 in total yards; got 108 yards rushing from tailback Stevie Hicks; freshman quarterback Bret Meyer threw for 239 yards; and Hobbs returned an interception for a TD at Colorado. But the Buffaloes countered with field goals of 60 and 54 yards from Mason Crosby in a 19-14 win over the Cyclones in Boulder. The kicking game hurt ISU as the Cyclones misfired on field goal attempts of 22 and 25 yards. Overall, ISU place-kickers were 3-for-11 on field goal tries through the first six games of the season. Iowa State went 0-5 in the red zone against the Buffaloes, including a lost fumble and two fourth-down stops. It was a game the Cyclones could have won. It only deepened the frustration.

Nik Moser logged 10 tackles and broke up one pass against Miami, earning Independence Bowl defensive player of the game honors.

The Cyclones were now 2-4 overall and 0-3 in the Big 12. A bowl trip, let alone a conference title, seemed out of the question.

If you wanted to designate where the road to a bowl began, you would look to the fourth quarter of the Baylor game. Iowa State, despite a 65-yard fumble return for a touchdown by defensive tackle Brent Curvey, trailed 25-20 with 4:58 left, 80 yards from pay dirt. Aided by a Meyer to wide receiver Todd Blythe 46-yard pass connection, the Cyclones drove 80 yards in 10 plays. Tailback Stevie Hicks, who had gone his first 260 career carries for 992 yards without a touchdown, took a pitch from Meyer and scored on a five-yard sweep for the winning score with 41 seconds left. ISU won, 26-25.

The ISU defense reared its head the next weekend, holding Kansas to 80 rushing yards and 208 total yards to beat the Jayhawks 13-7 with a gale blowing through Jack Trice Stadium. Curvey again scored on a fumble return, this one 30 yards. Seniors Tyson Smith (DE) and Brandon Brown (LB) were also making major contributions. The Cyclones got a pair of field goals from walk-on place-kicker Bret Culbertson, who stabilized the Iowa State kicking game, making 8-of-10 field goal attempts and all 16 PAT tries. Not bad for a guy who didn't even join the team until school started.

The Kansas win raised the stakes for the Nebraska game Nov. 6 in Ames. On a beautiful day, it was a game of big plays and the Cyclones made enough of them to win 34-27. Meyer hit on 17-of-38 passes for a career-high 345 yards and a career-best three TD passes. Meyer, a third-team freshman All-America by The Sporting News, grew more confident each game and finished the season with 1,926 passing yards with 10 touchdowns and only seven interceptions. Blythe had eight catches for 188 yards, all in the first half, and caught a TD pass with five seconds left in the half for a 24-7 intermission lead. Blythe, a second-team freshman All-American by The Sporting News, finished the season with 39 catches for 833 yards and a school-record nine touchdowns.

The Nebraska win had put 5-4 Iowa State in a position to earn a bowl berth and the previously unthinkable: a Big 12 North Division title. The initial hurdle appeared to be the steepest — a Nov. 20 game at Kansas State. ISU had not beaten the Wildcats since 1993 and hadn't won in Manhattan since 1988. The Wildcats were the only Big 12 North team McCarney had not beaten. Kansas State had outscored the Cyclones 166-24 in the three previous meetings between the two schools at KSU Stadium.

Like so many games in this unforgettable season, it didn't look good late. Kansas State led ISU 23-9 in the fourth quarter. It was 23-16 with 4:53 left when Meyer, as he had in the Baylor game, drove the Cyclones 80 yards, this time in six plays. Again a big pass play, this one a 51-yard bomb to Blythe, set up the tying score, a 3-yard Meyer to Todd Miller toss with 3:24 remaining. The big-play Iowa State defense forced a fumble on the ensuing Wildcat drive, and Hicks scored on a 20-yard run one play later for a 30-23 Cyclone lead. ISU cornerback LaMarcus Hicks returned an interception 40 yards for a TD on the next play from scrimmage for a 37-23 Cyclone victory.

Iowa State played host to Missouri in the regular-season finale with the outright division crown at stake. On a cold, windy day at Jack Trice Stadium, Iowa State missed a 24-yard field goal in the final two minutes and dropped a 17-14 overtime decision to the Tigers. But nothing could diminish the incredible story of a group of coaches and student-athletes who never lost focus on a goal. That singular vision prompted McCarney's selection by his peers as the Big 12 Coach of the Year.

Iowa State was invited to play in the Dec. 28 Independence Bowl against a Miami University team that had won the Mid-American Conference East Division with a 7-1 mark and an 8-4 overall record.

The Cyclones prevailed 17-13. ISU piled up a school bowl record 295 yards rushing and became the first Big 12 team to claim an Independence Bowl crown. Hicks rushed for 159 yards on 27 carries, including a 4-yard touchdown run on an option pitch from Meyer, who was named the game's offensive MVP. Meyer carried a season-high 23 times for 122 yards and added 114 yards on 10-for-28 passing.

Iowa State's defense brought its "A" game. Safety Nik Moser was named the game defensive MVP, making 10 tackles and breaking up a pass. The last hurrah went to Hobbs. The senior picked off a Josh Betts pass on the fourth play of a last-ditch Miami drive, returning the ball 41 yards in the final minute — the final play of a great career.

The 2005 season is a story of an Iowa State team that overcame an 0-3 Big 12 Conference start and four heartbreaking losses, three in overtime, to post just the 16th seven-win season in 114 years of Cyclone football. Iowa State's efforts affirmed the progress made by head coach Dan McCarney, the 2004 Big 12 Conference Coach of the Year. His defense, once Iowa State's weak link, was now one of the nation's best, and perhaps the stingiest ever, to play in Cardinal and Gold.

The 2004 Iowa State team had started the Big 12 season 0-3, but rebounded by winning five of its last six games, including a 17-13 win over Miami University in the Independence Bowl to finish the season with a 7-5 record. The Cyclones weren't eager to tempt fate again. But for every similarity between the 2004 and 2005 seasons, there were more differences that demonstrated the improvement made over the previous year.

Iowa State opened the 2005 season with a 32-21 win over Illinois State. The game was tied 8-8 at the half after, appropriately, the Cyclone defense scored the first points of the season on a safety. Sophomore quarterback Bret Meyer was efficient, hitting on 30-of-41 passes for 314 yards and a fourth-quarter touchdown pass to wide receiver Todd Blythe.

As the Cyclones prepared to face eighth-ranked Iowa the following weekend, the "half-empty" crowd compared the Hawkeyes' 56-0 season-opening win over outmanned Ball State against ISU's win over an NCAA Division I-AA foe to justify how heavily they favored Iowa heading into the game.

The rivalry, played before an ABC-TV audience and 54,290 fans at Jack Trice Stadium, did turn out to be one-sided, but not on the side of the favorite. ISU cornerback LaMarcus Hicks returned an interception 28 yards for a touchdown and the Iowa State defense forced five turnovers as ISU beat Iowa 23-3. The Cyclone defense made three interceptions and recovered a pair of fumbles. The ISU offense capitalized on the Iowa miscues, scoring all of its points off of the turnovers.

Turnovers would be a key storyline throughout the season. Iowa State forced a Big 12 best 35 turnovers in 2005, leading the league in turnover margin and placing seventh in that category nationally. Cyclone I-back Stevie Hicks rushed for 118 yards against the Hawkeyes. Throughout the season, his presence would be essential for Iowa State to play its best game.

Iowa State's defense sacked Iowa's quarterbacks three times as the Hawks never got closer to paydirt than the Cyclone 26-yard-line. The victory was ISU's sixth in the last eight meetings between the two schools. LaMarcus Hicks, who also recovered Iowa's first fumble, and punter Troy Blankenship, who had several key kicks, including a 68-yarder into the wind that helped the Cyclones win the field position battle, were named the Big 12 Conference defensive and special teams players of the week, respectively. The victory was Iowa State's first over an AP top 10 team since 1992.

After a week off, McCarney's Cyclones, ranked 22nd nationally on the AP poll, traveled to Army to play at storied Michie Stadium in West Point, N.Y., for the second time in school history. The game, telecast nationally on ESPN2, was tight throughout. Again turnovers played a major role. Iowa State scored two touchdowns off turnovers and another after a blocked punt to erase a 21-14 fourth-quarter deficit and deal Army its first-ever home night game loss, 28-21.

2005 EV1.net Houston Bowl

The next week's game at Nebraska would be a challenge due to several factors. ISU had won two of the last three games between the schools but had not beaten the Huskers in Lincoln since 1977. The Cyclones would get just one carry from tailback Stevie Hicks, who had been hampered by a nagging injury. His absence would figure large in three of Iowa State's losses.

The Nebraska game would go down to the last play. The 23rd-rated Cyclones had a 20-13 lead in the first overtime, but fell before 77,433 fans in Memorial Stadium. Tailback Greg Coleman, subbing for Hicks, scored on a 10-yard run for the Cyclone lead in the initial extra period. Nebraska countered with two Cory Ross touchdowns for a 27-20 double overtime decision.

The next two weeks were equally painful. An Iowa State team that had feasted on turnovers made a pair of fumbles at crucial times, including one at the Baylor goal line as the Bears prevailed 23-13 in Ames. Another overtime loss followed, this one on Oct. 15 at Missouri. The Cyclones spotted the Tigers two touchdowns on an interception return and a fumble return and trailed 14-0 in the first quarter. Iowa State fought back and led 24-14 after the last of three Ryan Kock 1-yard TD plunges. Kock scored 13 touchdowns in 2005, the most ever by a Cyclone fullback. Iowa State had a 10-point lead before Missouri tied the game in the final five minutes of regulation and then converted on a 26-yard field goal to hand ISU a 27-24 overtime loss. Unexpectedly, Iowa State had started the season 0-3 in the league as it had the previous season. Another reversal of fortune would be needed.

ISU, at McCarney's urging, wiped the slate clean and began a "second season" Oct. 22 against Oklahoma State. Before the Oklahoma State game in Ames, McCarney challenged his defense to garner four turnovers against the Cowboys. His team responded. The defense forced four interceptions on four straight second-half possessions and a first-half fumble as Iowa State prevailed 37-10.

The following week, an Oct. 29 game at Texas A&M, was a watershed moment for the 2005 team. Iowa State had lost all seven previous games between the two schools. The Cyclones overcame this history of futility in no uncertain terms, scoring a 42-14 win before 86,172 fans in Kyle Field for homecoming in College Station, Texas. Meyer hit on 20-of-32 passes for a career-high 371 yards (fifth in school history), including touchdown passes for 9, 53, 19 and 63 yards to Blythe as Kyle Field emptied early. Blythe's four touchdown catches were an Iowa State single-game record. He had eight total receptions for 214 yards, the second-best receiving yards effort in school history. McCarney called the win over the Aggies "about as great a victory as we've had since I've been here."

"I think Iowa State just woke up the nation," Cyclone tight end Walter Nickel said.

Woke up indeed. The following weekend, Nov. 5 in Ames, Nickel and his teammates sent their next wake-up call, blitzing Kansas State 45-17. Kansas State had outscored Iowa State 171-38 in the previous four games in Ames between the schools. Stevie Hicks, still coping with an injury that first occurred in fall practice, was healthy enough to rumble for 149 yards on 24 carries, including a 37-yard TD run to close out the scoring.

The home finale against Colorado will be remembered for many reasons, not the least of which was the weather. A tornado touched down in Ames about 90 minutes before the nationally telecast game against the Buffaloes, delaying kickoff 40 minutes. Despite the disruptions, the crowd of 49,242 stuck around to see a game worthy of its own memory. Iowa State free safety Steve Paris returned a fumble 66 yards for a touchdown and defensive tackle Brent "Big Play" Curvey intercepted a screen pass and returned it 66 yards for a score as the Cyclones beat No. 22 Colorado 30-16. Curvey's big play, the third touchdown by return in his career, ended a Buffalo drive that had started at their own 11-yard line, down 23-16. Colorado had driven 62 yards on 10 plays before Curvey silenced the Buffaloes' last bid.

Iowa State took the field Nov. 26 in Lawrence, Kan., with a second-straight shot at a share of the Big 12 Conference North Division title. ISU led 14-3 at the half and another Kock 1-yard TD plunge gave the Cyclones a 21-14 lead with 8:41 left in the game. The Jayhawks, who finished the season undefeated at home, rallied and scored the game-tying touchdown with 1:05 remaining and then prevailed on a field goal in overtime.

The Cyclones drew a tough bowl assignment, earning a position opposite Mountain West Conference champion and 14th-rated TCU. The Horned Frogs were 10-1 overall after running the Mountain West table at 9-0.

Nearly 20,000 Iowa State fans piled into Reliant Stadium for the New Year's Eve showdown.

Iowa State fell behind early, 14-0. But the Cyclones charged back with 17 straight points and trailed 24-17 at the half. Blythe's second TD reception of the game, a school-record 18th career scoring catch, tied the game 24-24 in the third quarter. The contest came down to a Peter LoCoco 44-yard TCU field goal with 5:25 left. TCU prevailed 27-24. Blythe's five catches for 105 yards and two scores earned him game offensive MVP honors. Iowa State defensive end Jason Berryman was the game's defensive MVP, with 12 tackles, 3 1/2 sacks and tackles for loss.

Meyer finished the season with 2,876 passing yards, second only to Seneca Wallace's 3,245 passing yards in 14 2002 games. Blythe, who became the third 1,000-yard receiver in school history and center Scott Stephenson were tabbed first-team all-conference selections by the league's coaches.

But the story of the 2005 Iowa State Cyclones was its defense. Led by all-Big 12 defensive tackle "Big Play" Curvey and all-conference nose guard Nick Leaders, the Cyclones allowed opponents an all-time defensive low of 102.7 rushing yards per game, nearly 40 yards under the school record set in 2004 (139.2). Iowa State opponents averaged just 2.98 yards per rush and scored only 10 rushing touchdowns, both school-record opponent lows. Linebacker Tim Dobbins, cornerback LaMarcus Hicks and free safety Steve Paris also earned all-Big 12 honors.

Iowa State (7-5) had been to five bowls in six years and the feeling was that the best was yet to come.

Matt Blair (No. 59) put together what is arguably the best NFL career by a former Cyclone. The 1971 Sun Bowl Defensive MVP played 12 seasons at linebacker for the Minnesota Vikings. He was a Pro Bowl selection six years in a row (1977-82) and appeared in two Super Bowls. His 160 games played makes him the NFL ironman of former Iowa Staters.

Directions to Ames from Des Moines International Airport

Proceed out of airport parking and turn left (north) on Fleur Drive. Drive north to the entrance to the Des Moines Freeway (I-235). Take I-235 East and simply keep following that road out of Des Moines and the next 35 miles to Ames (I-235 turns into I-35 just outside the Des Moines city limits).

To exit I-35 into Ames, take the Ames exit, heading west on U.S. Highway 30. Travel west on U.S. Highway 30, bypassing the Dayton and Duff Avenue exits, and turning off on the third exit, marked "Iowa State Center." You'll be traveling north on Elwood Drive, which will take you to the stadium.
